

STIMSON GOOD BET FOR SECRETARY OF STATE
BY DAVID LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE

Washington—Selection of Col. Henry L. Stimson as secretary of state in the Hoover cabinet, foreshadowed in the reports from Manila of his proposed departure for Washington, is by no means a foregone conclusion, but if it should be corroborated his appointment would be viewed by official and diplomatic Washington as eminently satisfactory.

Mr. Stimson is not a military man though he was secretary of war in the Taft cabinet and served in the World War. His experience in the field of diplomacy and his administrative ability have stood as much more characteristic than his affiliation with army affairs.

The most difficult task that Mr. Stimson had to do was in Nicaragua as the personal representative of President Coolidge. The Nicaragua episode had become a thorn in the side of the administration and the tangle was such that it was attracting the attention of the European as well as the Latin American countries.

Mr. Stimson acquitted himself so well on that mission and tackled it so impartially and forcefully that he won the admiration of both groups in the controversy. His policy of dealing directly with the principals and outlining the desires of the United States in unmistakable fashion was at times concurred in by the president here who came to rely on the Stimson recommendations absolutely.

SUCCEEDED WOOD
When the occasion arose for the sending of a man to the Philippines to succeed the late General Wood, Mr. Stimson was selected because of his knowledge of Philippine affairs, his legal ability and his abundance of tact.

Mr. Stimson is a lawyer of note, one of the most eminent in the country. He is highly regarded by both elements in the republican party in New York state and is understood to have been recommended by Elihu Root and Charles Evans Hughes. It is reported that Mr. Hoover wanted Mr. Hughes but the latter did not feel inclined to return to public life. A recommendation from Mr. Hughes would have great weight as he is viewed by Mr. Hoover as the foremost American in matters of foreign policy. Mr. Hughes as a campaigner did yeoman work for the Hoover cause and his word would count politically if not in other directions too.

Colonel Stimson's legal ability is considered a big factor because in recent years the selection of an able lawyer has been regarded as a prerequisite in the portfolio of secretary of state. Mr. Kellogg as well as his predecessor, Mr. Hughes, distinguished themselves at the bar. If Mr. Stimson is chosen, it will be an acceptance of the advice of the two biggest men in the republican party—Mr. Hughes and Mr. Root—and an endorsement of Mr. Coolidge's appointment of the same individual for two important posts in his own administration.

SETS FIRE TO HOME BECAUSE IT IS FUN

Milwaukee—(AP)—Mrs. Marian Cohen, 19-year-old wife and mother, confessed Friday night to state fire marshal's deputies that she had set fire to her own home three times because she "thought it would be lots of fun to see the house burn down."

Two attempts were made on Jan. 8 and a third last Monday when the Cohen's furniture was demolished before the blaze was extinguished. In each case she fled with her 9-month-old baby after firing the home. The woman is holding pending issuance of a warrant charging arson.

OPERATE TO REMOVE TOOTH FROM HER LUNG

Wichita, Kansas—(AP)—Esther Elizabeth Croat, 11, Sat. was en route to Philadelphia where she will undergo an operation at graduate hospital there for removal of a tooth in her lung.

The girl swallowed the tooth last Dec. 20 while her mother was attempting to remove it with a string. Physicians were unable to locate the tooth and Friday a serious lung infection developed indicating they said, that it had lodged in the girl's lung.

MABEL SCORED FOR SPIES IN U. S. PRISONS

Democrat Charges That Mrs. Willebrandt Is Responsible for System

Washington—(AP)—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, has been charged by Representative Boylan, Democrat, New York, with being responsible for a spy system in federal prisons. Inserted in the congressional record Saturday the charge was described as "entirely unwarranted" by Chairman Cooper, of the house special prison investigation committee. Boylan had asserted that he did not believe "Mrs. Willebrandt's policy was indorsed by the president or her immediate superior, Attorney General Sargent."

Cooper said, however, that he had been told by Mr. Sargent that the system was a policy of the department of justice and not of Mrs. Willebrandt alone. "I personally and the committee as a whole," he continued, "do not approve of the system of undercover men in federal prisons, sent there on fraudulent charges."

SCORES HER SPEECHES
In his statement, Boylan called Mrs. Willebrandt's speeches during the campaign "intemperate and unchristian."

"Taking her pulpit in the churches where only God's message of brotherly and sisterly love should be spoken," he said, "she inflamed the passions of our people, flouted religion itself, and created bitterness which may not subside for a generation."

"Intemperance, it seems to me, has marked the official conduct of this glowing apostle of prohibition and incarceration of agents provocateur in our federal prisons. Fanatical hatred, her attempt to incite the conspiracy of our federal laws in prosecution of violators of the Volstead act in New York city."

FRIED IS HONORED AT CAPITAL OF NATION

Washington—(AP)—Captain George Fried, master of the America, and the rescuer of the crew of the Florida, received the congratulations Saturday of the United States Shipping board and the United States navy for his courage on the high seas.

The shipping board expressed its admiration of the captain's conduct at a meeting during which Chairman O'Connor said he felt that many officers operating American ships would be ready to render similar heroic services.

Captain Fried was presented by the board with a copy of a resolution commending his conduct adopted at the second national merchant marine conference last week. At the navy department Captain Fried received the congratulations of Secretary Wilbur, Assistant Secretary Robins, Assistant Secretary Warner and other ranking officials.

FOCH RECOVERING FROM SETBACK IN HIS ILLNESS

Paris—(AP)—Marshal Ferdinand Foch, who had been slowly recovering from an illness due to heart trouble and kidney complications, has had a second setback.

He developed another center of congestion in the lungs overnight and there was an air of uneasiness about his home, although his doctors refused to sanction any suggestion of real alarm.

They explained that this second spot of lung infection already had decreased Saturday morning and presumably was tending to disappear as did the first spot of congestion noticed several days ago.

MUST USE BLANKS TO GET HUNTING LICENSES

Madison—(AP)—County clerks who have permitted residents hunting licenses to be issued without proper application by the person desiring the license are guilty of malfeasance in office, the attorney general has informed the state conservation commission. The attorney general suggests that full instructions regarding the issuance of licenses be sent to county clerks, and if they fail to comply with them, that district attorneys be requested to bring action against them.

The law requires that licenses must be applied for on a regular blank, and must be verified by the affidavit of the applicant before some one who has local authority to administer another, such as a notary public, justice of the peace or county clerk. The conservation commission has received many applications filled out by persons who do not have authority to administer an oath.

DOCTORS REPORT NO CHANGE FOR MONARCH

London—(AP)—Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Hugh Fisher attended King George Saturday and stated when they left the sick room that there was no change in his majesty's condition.

Move To Unite Virginia Democrats For Hoover

HINDENBURG SEES FIRST MOVIE AND FINDS IT ACCURATE

Richmond, Va.—(AP)—A movement is under way to unite the so-called Hoover, or Anti-Smith Democrats with the Republican party in Virginia, at least for the forthcoming state campaign.

Questions have been asked three Democratic leaders by A. J. Dunning, Jr., of Norfolk, "Hoover Democrat" leader and on the answer to these may depend whether the "anti-Smithites" will make a concerted move to join the Republicans at the "anti-Smith" Democratic conference to be held in Lynchburg, Feb. 5.

That there was some sentiment for consolidation with the Republicans, regardless of the replies from Dunning's queries to Chairman Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, Governor Roosevelt of New York, and Governor Byrd of Virginia, was seen in a statement Friday night by Charles S. Smith, of Newport News, "Hoover Democrat" who said that the Republican party in Virginia was ready to offer the Lynchburg conference satisfactory candidates and a satisfactory platform.

Dunning, chairman of the Second Virginia district delegation to the "anti-Smith" conference, made it clear that he acted on his own initiative in sending queries to Raskob, Roosevelt and Byrd.

Mr. Dunning's telegram to Mr. Raskob asked the latter if he would resign his post in the interests of harmony in the Democratic party in the south.

He inquired of Governor Roosevelt if the latter were responsible for "statements reported to have been made by you with reference to Governor Smith having been cheated out of the presidency by ignorance, bigotry and religious fanatics?" Also what particular Virginia Democrats, if any, expressed or intimated such sentiments to you?

10 BURN TO DEATH AFTER EXPLOSION
Believe West Virginia Miner Tried to Dry Blasting Powder in Home

Buckhannon, W. Va.—(AP)—A can of blasting powder, placed in front of an open grate to dry, was believed to be the cause of ten persons being burned to death shortly after midnight. Their dwelling was razed.

The blaze practically wiped out an entire family. Those dead are: Pete Simes, 50, a miner; his wife and six children, Solomon, 17, Hiram, 14, Ernest, 10, Harold, 8, Mabel, 4, and Ida Jane, 2; a married daughter, Mrs. Troy Gibson and her three months old infant. Mrs. Gibson's husband escaped with severe burns.

As the fire raged firemen stood helplessly by, there being no water to combat the flames. The dwelling was located outside the hydrant zone.

Neighbors told fire officials that an explosion preceded the fire. This gave rise to the belief Simes was drying out powder for his work in the coal mines. Fire officials said an investigation would be made.

TROTZKY MUST REMAIN ON SOVIET TERRITORY

London—(AP)—The Daily Express Saturday morning printed a dispatch from Moscow which said that although Leon Trotsky, deposed soviet leader, would be exiled from Russia, he would be forced to reside on Russian territory.

This situation arises from fear of Mustafa Kemal Pasha, president of Turkey, that Trotsky might be assassinated while in Turkey and international complications ensue.

To prevent such a happening he has notified the soviet government that Turkey will consent to Trotsky's living within its borders only if he will reside in Angora, instead of Constantinople and will be provided quarters at the soviet embassy, which is regarded by a national law as an integral part of Russia.

MORGAN AND YOUNG OFF FOR MEETING ON DEBTS

New York—(AP)—J. P. Morgan and Owen D. Young were on the Aquitania Saturday bound for Paris as the United States unofficial delegates to the committee of experts to consider Germany's reparation payments.

Before sailing Mr. Young repeated the statement he made five years ago in regard to his work on the Dawes plan for payment of Germany's obligation. He then said: "I regard the question to be settled by our committee as business questions only. I hope they will be approached in that spirit and with a determination to get a constructive answer speedily."

Mr. Morgan, displaying his well known aversion to being photographed, slipped aboard the liner by a freight gangplank. He made no statement.

WARDEN AND FRIEND LIVE ON SLIM RATIONS

Marquette—(AP)—Conservation Warden A. E. and Francis Miles, his companion, lived on peanut cakes, lard and coffee while snow-bound for two weeks in a little log cabin on the upper reaches of the Peshigo river in Marquette.

Dale arrived at Marquette late Friday, leaving Miles at the cabin to wait for a snowplow which is expected to reach the place sometime Sunday.

When the warden and his companion left two weeks ago, they took their short rations with them and were unprepared to cope with the snowstorms that overtook them.

BRIAND AND LEYGUES ILL WITH INFLUENZA

Paris—(AP)—Aristide Briand, foreign minister, and Georges Leygues, minister of the navy, were ill with influenza Saturday and could not attend a scheduled cabinet meeting. Neither case was regarded as the slightest way as serious influenza, thus far in France this year has taken a mild form.

112 Persons Learn Name Of Their Home Village

Chicago—(AP)—The 112 citizens of Beverly have just found out they are the 112 citizens of Beverly. They thought they just were living around 115-119th streets, and Western and 44th avenue, citizens of the state, of course, but fancy-free municipality. They might have gone on that way, not knowing the name of their home town—a not known, even, that they had a home town—except for one thing—Taxes.

No village that ever hopes to amount to anything in a big way can exist without a tax collector. Beverly has one. It has also a precinct, a half dozen trustees, a clerk, and a police magistrate. No detail was overlooked in making Beverly a village in the full meaning of the word. No detail, it now develops, except telling the citizenry about it.

Among the things that the citizens have learned are: that an election was held and the village of Beverly is incorporated; that officers were elected; and that $500,000 paving assessment was voted.

FLOOD RELIEF BILL WILL GO TO SENATORS

AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE ORDERS APPROPRIATION MEASURE TO BE REPORTED

Washington—(AP)—A bill to authorize an appropriation of $3,658,000 for flood relief in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas was ordered reported Saturday by the senate agriculture committee.

Action was taken after a hearing in which representatives of the states affected including O. K. Allen of Louisiana, outlined the damage that had been done by overflowing waters of the Mississippi and other rivers in 1927.

Although the budget bureau had informed the department of agriculture that the contemplated appropriation would be in conflict with President Coolidge's economy program, the department, it was said, was not opposed to passage of the bill.

The bill accepts the figures prepared by the highway departments of the four states prepared after estimates had been submitted by engineers.

ANOTHER COMPANY TAKES OVER APPLETON THEATRE

BULLETIN
Milwaukee—(AP)—A positive statement that negotiations whereby the Community Theatres, Inc., will take over all of the show houses of the L. K. Brin circuit, except those in Milwaukee, was made here Saturday afternoon by Hal G. Olson, publicity man of the Community Theatres, speaking for Charles Noble, one of the prime movers in the deal.

Meanwhile Henry Goldenberg, a Brin official here, declared that the story of the proposed deal was "absolutely untrue." Stanley Brown Milwaukee, road man for the Brin circuit, also denied the story.

Olson countered the Brown statement by saying that the latter was not "on the inside, and did not know what it was all about."

Madison—(AP)—Nine Wisconsin theatres leased by L. K. Brin, Milwaukee, three of which are in Madison will soon be taken over by Community Theatres Inc., Milwaukee corporation of which William E. Pabst is president. Community Theatres controls show houses in West Allis, Lake Geneva, Burlington and Whitewater.

The Brin-leased or controlled theatres which will be acquired by Community Theatres are the Portage and the Home at Portage, the Oshkosh at Oshkosh, the Fond du Lac in that city; the Appleton in that city; and the Brin at Menasha. Community Theatres also contemplates entry in the business in Delavan, West Bend, Janesville, Monroe and Wausau.

STRESEMANN TALKS FOR KELLOGG PEACE TREATY

Berlin—(AP)—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, opened the debate in the Reichstag Saturday morning on ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty.

He lauded the international instrument as tackling the problem of peace from an entirely new angle, but he expressed regret that some governments apparently failed to draw from it its necessary corollaries, such as international disarmament.

BRITISH SHIP GROUND DURING FOG IN CHANNEL

London—(AP)—A thick fog in the English channel all Friday night was held responsible Saturday for the grounding of the British steamer Dania near Dungeness.

Poincare Asks France To Arm Against Autonomists

ARMED WHEN HE IS CAUGHT IN CONVEYOR

Paris—(AP)—Charges that the autonomist movement in Alsace had its inception "east of the Rhine" were before the French people Saturday.

In a 10-hour speech before three sittings of the chamber of deputies Friday Premier Raymond Poincare made this accusation and declared that he was going to parliament and ask for power for France to "arm itself" against the movement.

In the course of his speech even the autonomist deputies protested his quotation from a German review that Alsatians had banished France from their hearts, and when he had concluded he was given an ovation in which only the Communists and some of the autonomists abstained from cheering.

Meanwhile dispatches from Strasbourg, one of the most important cities in the province, told of hundreds gathering to hear reports of the premier's speech. "Discontent with the French regime, it was said, was manifest and there was free interchange of expression that Alsace had had enough of speeches and was suffering from a dearth of constructive acts."

In his statement that the government would ask parliament for authority to "arm itself" against the autonomists Premier Poincare did not say what manner or arms he had in mind, but he did add that he hoped, having once obtained them, it would never be necessary to employ them.

In proof of his assertion of German background for the autonomist movement M. Poincare cited articles appearing in the Alsatian press concerning alleged movements seeking autonomy in Brittany and Corsica. "News" of the same character, he said, had been disseminated by certain German papers.

He referred to large sums of money from "unknown sources," which part of the press of Alsace was alleged to have received.

It is necessary, he insisted, that the government have the means of putting an end to "these odious campaigns."

SHERIFF WILL WAR ON SLOT MACHINES

Kimberly Pair Fined $50 and Costs Each in Court This Morning

With the arrest of two soft drink proprietors at Kimberly Friday following raids by a deputy sheriff's squad, Sheriff Fred W. Giese announced Saturday that he had started a drive to clean slot machines from the county.

"Every deputy on my list has been instructed to arrest proprietors of resorts where slot machines are found in operation," Sheriff Giese said.

"There are altogether too many gambling devices in the county and I intend to make an strenuous effort to clean them out."

Mrs. Hortense Poppe and A. Newhouse were the soft drink proprietors arrested at Kimberly Friday. One slot machine was found in Mrs. Poppe's place and three were found in Newhouse's place. All were confiscated and will be destroyed. Deputy Sheriffs George Long and Lothar Kemp conducted the raids Friday.

Both Mrs. Poppe and Newhouse pleaded guilty of possession of slot machines in municipal court Saturday morning before Judge Theodore Berg and were fined $50 and costs each.

POPE PIUS WALL CALL ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

Rome—(AP)—After an interim of 60 years an ecumenical council shortly will be convoked by Pope Pius XI to meet in 1929, it is learned.

Projected repairs and alterations to the nave of St. Peter's in anticipation of the meeting already are being considered by the pontiff.

More than 1,000 bishops and high ecclesiastics from all over the world will attend the meeting which will consider dogmatic matters and possibly the Holy Roman question.

It is this last phase which gives the prospective council particular significance. The last ecumenical council was that which adjourned in 1870, just one month after Italian troops under Victor Emmanuel marched into Rome and the pope began his self-imposed imprisonment at the Vatican.

Not since then have the bishops been called together in ecumenical assembly, simply means "world wide council."

In consequence, residents of the area contend they did not vote a thing about it. Two dozen voters were said and the village was incorporated. William S. Maxwell, a real estate man, was elected president of the village, the petitioners averred, and relatives or employees of Maxwell, who, they say, is half owner of a real estate development in the area.

The petition charges the village has been guilty of unlawful taxation, intrusion, and unlawful use and exerting of office.

In justice to the Beverly that gets mail in Adams-co. Ill. it is only fair to set forth that the "Beverly" now in court is another one, much to its own astonishment.

FORMER PROSECUTOR GIVEN PRISON TERM

Danville, Ill.—(AP)—O. P. B. Danville state's attorney of W. Danville, was sentenced to two years imprisonment and $500 fine by federal court Saturday on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

George Bell, former coroner, was given a year and a day imprisonment and $250 fine. The court deferred the sentences of Hezzer Byrn, former chief of police of Johnston City, and Pete Sarno, alleged bootlegger of Williamson, until the next term of court, which opens March 1.

Week's Weather

For the region of the Great Lakes—Rather frequent precipitation, no extreme cold likely. Temperatures mostly near normal.

For the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys and the northern and central great plains—Unsettled weather much of week with occasional precipitation; no extreme cold likely; temperatures mostly near or somewhat above normal.

CRUSHED WHEN HE IS CAUGHT IN CONVEYOR

THEODORE VAN DOMLEN PULLED BENEATH BELT HOUSING AND KILLED INSTANTLY

NO INQUEST IS ORDERED
Assistant District Attorney Is Convinced That Death Was Accident

Pulled beneath a conveyor belt housing when an iron bar he was holding was held to the belt by magnetism, Theodore Van Domlen, 29, 1403 S. J. (Gordon) st., was crushed to death about 9 o'clock Saturday morning at the gas plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company on W. Water-st.

Van Domlen was working alone in a cabin at one end of the conveyor belt line when the accident occurred, and no one saw the accident. Gus Meris, 1906 S. Law-st., who operates a crane several hundred feet away from where Van Domlen was working, saw the latter enter the little cabin. A few minutes later the belt jerked in an erratic manner and when Meris went to investigate he found Van Domlen's body wedged between the belt and a plate about ten inches above it.

Death had been almost instantaneous, physicians announced. Van Domlen's chest had been crushed. The conveyor belt on which Van Domlen was working was equipped with a high magnetic current. This current served to remove foreign metal particles from the coal when it passed over the belt. The coal was then dropped in one bin while the foreign particles were removed from the belt into another bin.

At the end of the conveyor line, which was in a little cabin where the accident occurred, the belt passed beneath a metal housing. There was a top inch opening between the top of the metal housing and the belt.

DRAGGED BY BELT
It is believed that Van Domlen was attempting to remove something from the belt with an iron bar. The magnetism held the bar on the belt and drew it into the 10-inch opening and Van Domlen was dragged in also. The opening was large enough to permit his head to enter but his chest was badly crushed.

After a thorough investigation Saturday morning Oscar J. Schmieg, assistant district attorney, announced that the death was apparently accidental and there would be no inquest.

Van Domlen had been employed by the Wisconsin Power company for about five years and for the last two years he had been working on the conveyor belt.

He is survived by his widow, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Benzschawel, 1917 S. Jefferson-st., four sisters, Mrs. George Dreissen and Miss Anna of Appleton, and Sister M. Jeannette and Sister M. Lillian of St. Louis, Mo.; three brothers, William, Jacob and George of Menominee, Mich.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning from Sacred Heart church. The body will be removed from Breidtscheider's Undertaking parlors Sunday morning to the parent's home at 1917 S. Jefferson-st.

EARLY VOTE EXPECTED ON CRUISER MEASURE

Washington—(AP)—With limitation of debate at hand, supporters and opponents of the cruiser bill were looking forward Saturday to the final vote expected early next week.

Thus far, no proposal to reduce the number of cruisers to be built has been made and the fight on the measure has centered around the clause requiring that construction of the 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier provided for must begin by 1931.

The Parade of Presidents

Are you reading the series of articles under the heading "The Inaugural Parade?" appearing daily in The Appleton Post-Crescent? If you haven't started this series it isn't too late to start now.

Today's article describes the inauguration of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the Democratic party, who walked from his boarding house to the capitol to take the oath of office and then walked back to his lodgings where he lived for three weeks before taking up his residence in the White House.

You will find all these articles of absorbing interest. Today's story is printed on page 12.

Dont Need Signpost To Designate County Boundary

OUTAGAMIE-CO STARTS WHERE ROADS ARE BAD

Brown-co Far Ahead of Outagamie-co in Keeping Highways Open

Autoists on highway 41 need no signposts to tell them when they reach the boundary line between Outagamie and Brown counties. The condition of the plowed out highway tells the story. On the Brown-co side driving at 40 miles an hour is a pleasure; on the Outagamie-co side driving at 20 miles an hour is endangering one's neck. The difference in the condition of the highway at the boundary line is so apparent that it can be felt as well as seen.

In Outagamie-co the snow is plowed just wide enough for a single car to pass while in Brown-co the snow is pushed back the whole width of the highway and nowhere is it necessary to stop to permit another car to pass.

In Outagamie-co deep zig-zagging ruts are cut in the six or eight inches of snow left on the pavement while in Brown-co the pavement is bare and summer driving is approximated.

In Outagamie-co, it was the rule rather than the exception that only one automobile could get through at a time. In Brown-co it was not necessary to stop once to allow another car to pass. In Outagamie-co, a Post-Crescent car was compelled to wait at least five times to allow other cars to pass and at least five other cars were forced to wait until the Post-Crescent car passed them.

In Outagamie the drifts have been pushed to the side just far enough to make room for a single car to pass. The snow banks, in some places are 10 and 12 feet high. Another severe snow storm and wind will close these roads so effectively that they cannot be opened.

Brown-co, however, will not be severely handicapped by another storm because the road has been opened sufficiently wide and the snow thrown back from the edge of the road.

Little effort had been made in Outagamie-co to remove snow down to the pavement and traffic has cut deep ruts and holes. Passing over these ruts the motorist endangers the springs and even the wheels of his car. It is difficult to guide a car through some of the narrow places because of loose snow which hides these ruts and bumps and there is an ever-present danger of the car being thrown quickly to the side and into a snow bank.

To say the least, traveling over highway 41 in Outagamie-co between Kaukauna and the Brown-co line is thrilling, if not really dangerous.

But once past the Brown-co line there is a change. The snow has been removed to the pavement in most places. It is wide enough for two cars to pass easily and without danger and it is possible to make good time.

The first impression gained by a motorist is that Brown-co has had less snow.

The first impression after passing the county line is that Brown-co has had less snow. But a little examination, however, reveals that there is just as much snow in Brown-co as in Outagamie-co, but Brown-co plows have spread the snow over a wide area instead of piling it up in huge banks at the edge of the road.

It was found that every state and federal trunk highway in Brown-co, with the exception of a short stretch on Highway 29, was open to travel Thursday noon, and most of the important county trunks also are open. In Outagamie-co only the most important state highways were open, and county trunks were untouched.

Brown-co uses five Onelida four wheel drive trucks, one Clintonville four wheel drive truck, two 5-ton tractors and four 10-ton tractors to open its roads. Two of the 10-ton tractors are rented. One of the rented tractors is stationed at Denmark and the other at Greenleaf. The county pays $4 per hour for these machines and furnishes a plow. The tractor owner furnishes the men and materials to keep the tractors going. Each tractor has a definite territory to cover and they are sent out on orders of the highway commissioner.

The rest of the equipment is stationed at the county barns at Duck Creek and is responsible for opening roads in the rest of the county.

The visit to the Brown-co barns and garage was a decided contrast to a visit to the Outagamie-co barns.

At the latter garage more than $30,000 worth of equipment is standing outside buried deep in snow. At the Brown-co garage not a single piece of equipment was found outside. It is all housed indoors.

Brown-co highway officials said that up until the last heavy storm the trucks had been used almost exclusively to keep the roads open but that after the last storm it was necessary to use the tractors.

In order to move the heavy tractors quickly from one part of the county to another the Brown-co highway department has purchased a six-wheel Onelida truck of a 15-ton capacity and the tractor is loaded to its destination. The truck also is loaded with stone to give it weight and is used to open the roads.

Equipment owned by the Brown-co department includes several Wausau plows with upper wings which cut away the top of snow banks and shove it further out of the way.

One highway official said that while some trucks and tractors broke down, the trouble was not serious. In Outagamie-co the trucks used in snow removal work are constantly breaking down.

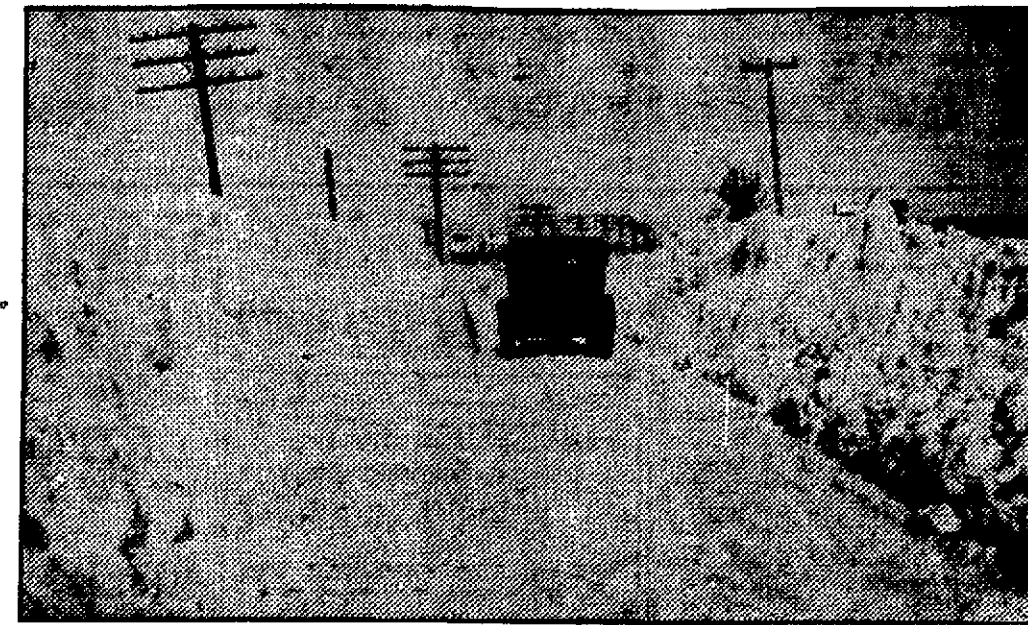

It would seem, as a result of the comparison of the Brown and Outagamie-co highway departments, that

How Snow Is Removed In Neighboring Counties

These two pictures were made on highway 41 Thursday afternoon. The picture at the left shows how snow is removed in Brown-co, just a few hundred feet from the Outagamie-co line, and the picture at the right is typical of snow removal on the same highway in Outagamie-co. The picture at the left shows the snow removed to the pavement and spread out wide enough for two cars to pass without difficulty. In Outagamie-co the road is open just wide enough for one car to get through, except at turnout places, and the snow on the pavement is several inches deep, filled with tortuous ruts which rack a car and make driving difficult. The pictures make it appear as if there is less snow in Brown-co than in Outagamie-co, but the fact is that in Brown-co the snow has been pushed back and the top of the cuts have been cut off, while in this county the snow merely was shoveled from the center of the road and left standing in deep piles on the side.

POPULATION OF CITY 26,081, SURVEY SHOWS

30,000 People Included in Appleton and Suburbs, According to Estimate

Appleton's population now is 26,081, and 30,000 with the suburbs, according to the 1929 population survey issued by the Newspaper Feature Bureau. The 1920 census gave this city a population of 19,551.

The outstanding feature of the latest population survey is the continued rapidity of the trend from rural to urban communities. The 1920 census, it is now generally realized, will show a pronounced gain in the country's urban population, as compared with the figures shown by the 1920 census.

An interesting feature is the rapid growth shown by the cities of the south, middle west and Pacific slope. The growth for many cities in the middle states and New England section is at a lower rate with a few striking exceptions.

Creation of Metropolitan Pittsburgh by the vote of the state of Pennsylvania in the November election has added another city to those having more than one million inhabitants. A summary of the Newspaper Feature Bureau estimates for the seven cities follows:

1920 City	1929 City	1929 City and Suburbs
New York	5,620,048	6,519,255
Chicago	2,707,705	3,242,046

THIRTY TO TAKE EXAMS FOR POLICE, FIRE JOBS

Thirty men seeking jobs as policemen and firemen will take civil service examinations at the city hall Monday night. E. A. Schmalz, secretary of the fire and police commission, will conduct the examinations. The 30 applicants were selected eligible to take the examinations by the commission this week. After the examinations two policemen and one fireman will be chosen from those who make the highest grades. The rest who have passing grades will make up a certified list from which future vacancies in both departments will be filled.

The trouble in Outagamie-co is not that the highway crews are not working as hard and as long as they might but that their equipment is inadequate.

Brown-co roads are open because the highway department has been given machinery adequate for the work. Outagamie-co roads are in miserable shape because the equipment here is not of the proper type and there isn't enough of it. No other conclusion can be reached after traveling over the highways in the two counties and comparing their snow removal equipments.

Even If He Got Out, He's Back In Hole Once More

It's Ground-hog day, and the sun is shining, but small difference it will make to the little weather prognosticator this year, for he couldn't get out of his hole if he wanted to—not unless he could equip his nose with a snowplow and one or two tractors. Though he builds his burrow slanting upward so no water may enter, it is doubtful if any precaution he might have taken last fall could have conquered the great amount of snow on the ground at the present time.

The appellation, "Ground-hog day" for the second of February, is essentially an American creation, though the day itself had its origin way back in pagan times. In Europe the day is known as Candlemas Day, or the festival of the Purification of the Holy Virgin, and its association with the condition of the weather dates back to an old tradition that the weather on Candlemas day indicated the duration of winter. If the weather was sunny and cheerful, it pointed to a continuance of winter and bad crops; if the sun was overcast and obscured and the day cold and cheerless, it was considered a good omen for an early spring.

An old Scottish poem shows the existence of the tradition in early times: "If Candlemas Day be dry and fair, The half o'winter's to come and mair; If Candlemas Day be wet and foul, The half o'winter's gone at Yule."

The tradition prevails also from the old belief that the 12 days from Christmas to January 5 were the keys of the weather for the 12 succeeding months.

Although ground-hog day, as

DEPARTMENT CALLED TO CHIMNEY FIRE

The fire department was called to the residence of Lloyd A. Atchinson, 737 W. Lawrence-st, about 7:30 Saturday morning when a small chimney fire started. No damage resulted. The department also was called out, shortly after noon, Friday, when a heater set fire to a car owned by Louis Weltman, 932 E. Eldorado-st. The blaze was put out, however, before the department arrived.

AUTO ACCIDENT COMPENSATION IS NEW BADGER IDEA

Bill Would Have Every Autoist Pay Into State Insurance Fund

Madison—(AP)—A motor vehicle accident compensation law modeled after the present Wisconsin workmen's compensation act is asked in a bill introduced in the state senate Friday by Sen. Walter Polakowski, Milwaukee.

The bill provides for creation of a separate division of the state industrial commission to administer the law.

Under the bill, each automobile owner would pay an insurance premium to the secretary of state at the time he or she applies for an automobile license. This fee would be as follows: for passenger automobiles, $10; for motorcycles, $5; for trucks, $15 and for buses $25.

The secretary of state would remit this insurance money to the state treasurer, who would be its custodian.

The industrial commission would be authorized to appoint three examiners who would be authorized to appoint three examiners who would administer the law. They would be paid salaries not to exceed $4,000 annually, their salaries to be paid out of the state general fund.

Any person injured in an automobile accident would be entitled to compensation, regardless of whether the injured person was guilty of negligence.

TELEVISION CELL IS USED IN OBSERVATORY

Madison—(AP)—One of the main tools of astronomy, the photo-electric cell, has been adopted in astronomical work of the Washburn observatory here.

The celestial television is used to take advantage of a rare opportunity to solve one of the mysteries of space. This is a large, faint companion star that revolves around the star Epsilon, making the circuit one every 27 years. At present this uncharted body is directly in front of Epsilon, shutting off the light of that star.

The photo-electric cell, extremely sensitive to light, is used to measure the amount of light from this obscuring presence. Prof. Joel Stebbins of the University of Wisconsin, who devised the photo-electric cell, says in a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

"The companion star must be an unusual body; it is a planet larger than the sun, so diffuse that its density cannot be more than one one-hundred-thousand that of air, and yet it shines like a star."

"Some of the facts about this system have been known heretofore, but it is hoped to secure new data from the present eclipses which affords an opportunity not to be repeated for 27 years."

Wood Adds To Model Home Attractiveness

Nothing Can Take Place Of Lumber To Give Real Touch Of Home Comforts

Time and again we have told you the Model Home is of fireproof construction. It is. It would be difficult to build it in flames or wreck it by incendiaries. It has but a small fraction of lumber in its construction. But wood is necessary to bring out the true beauty of a home. There can be no substitute for the fine grains of the high grade finishing woods of oak, walnut and gum.

Wood has been employed in the Model Home in particular parts of the finish, as a bride might adorn herself with jewels. There is something responsive to human touch in wood, which it is impossible to duplicate in steel or stone. Strive as one will for that which cannot be destroyed by flame or weather, we cannot but admire the subtle warmth, the welcoming hospitality, the intriguing spell of richly grained wood—the wood you love to touch.

Some of the places in which lumber has been employed are the beautiful oak floors, the door and window casings, the kitchen cupboards. The splendid specimens of cabinet work in wood were made by the Standard Manufacturing Co., of the highest grade plywoods and veneers. Most of the veneered surfaces are either oak or gumwood.

One is impressed, while going through the Model Home, with the idea that Architect Miller has kept his mind wide open, and his pencil sharpened, in his desire to adopt for use here, the newest and best of products, as well as the most efficient of appliances. That he has been successful in this most easily recognized of the fine tour of inspection through the house, in fact, this must be apparent, even to the casual caller at the Model Home.

It should not be necessary to mention here, or in any part of this page, the importance of the carpenter work called for in the plans. It is a most conspicuous part of the finished job, and in the work which the Model Home reveals to us, we feel sure Fred Hoeppner Sons who are doing it must be justly proud. It could not be better.

Plate glass, and art glass in doors, windows and built-in closets, is not pretentious. Of its kind, however, it is the best, and is well worth careful examination. And what is there which can add greater charm to a residence than clear, well-glazed leaded windows and good mirrors, where such can be appropriately used?

The glass and glazing in the Model Home has all been the work of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., than whom there are no better craftsmen in the state. "Everything in Glass" is the motto of this house, and quite correctly so, for they put in anything from ordinary window panes to gorgeous memorial windows.

Paint was not required extensively in the Model Home, either, but where it has been used, specifications have called for products of a superior grade and their application in a manner befitting only artists in their line. In this instance the paint is also from Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. and its application, where called for, is with the mastery hand and deft brushes of Leland R. Feavel. We would like to say more about the paint and the manner in which it has been applied. To do so, however, would necessitate dry technicalities of manufacture and application certain to prove wearisome.

While we are looking at windows, glass work, painting and the innumerable details which follow in their train, we cannot overlook the Burke Metal Weather Strips, applied to all outside doors by J. E. Burke Co., of Fond du Lac. The Monarch Metal Weather Strip will be found highly important. We would think that the saving effected in a single window equipped with these strips would easily equal the value of a half ton of coal, where coal is burned.

How many cubic feet of gas will not be saved in the Model Home we will not venture to predict. We are sure that the saving will be a large one, however.

We do not consider it necessary to state that hardware in the Home is all of the highest grade. Those who drew the plans and those who engineered the Model Home project would have none other. It is the celebrated P. & F. Corbin brand and has all been purchased through A. Galpin's Sons, who have also featured the copper work in the home.

The Rollers, mentioned briefly on several occasions, will be especially conspicuous.

They will protect every window in the Model Home. The rolling screens will be a permanent feature of the Home, and the semi-annual bugbear of spring installation and autumn removal will be eliminated.

Lights Are Stressed In Model Home

Since lighting equipment is an outstanding decorative feature in the home, thoughtful care must be given to its selection and placement according to Finkle Electric Shop, dealers in Moe-Bridges Co. lighting equipment which has been installed in the Model Home.

All the light fixtures, which carry out the Old English theme of the Model Home, were made especially for this installation. Filling special orders is a service maintained by the Moe-Bridges Co.

It is best to consider the lighting fixtures as soon as possible, because their style and design may change other equipment in your home. It is pointed out. Often, too, they set a motif for the decorative scheme of the interiors and their early selection in these cases is essential.

"Before you begin the selection of lighting equipment," for your home, think for a moment of the widely different effects of lighting alone on a setting on the legitimate stage," said Harwood Finkle, proprietor of Finkle Electric Shop.

"One combination of lights gives the effect of a beautiful warm sunset, while another changes the same setting into a bleak December morning. And the actors' roles are played accordingly, helped immeasurably by the mood the lighting effect creates.

"Each room of your home is to be a setting in the unending Play of Life—and you and those dear to you are to be the actors. Here, too, the lighting equipment determines the atmosphere of the setting and the moods of the actors—but in this case the setting and moods are real and not assumed for the time being.

It is highly important, then, that the lighting equipment be given early consideration in the building of a home. Lasting satisfaction can be assured by developing your home around a central theme—and starting with the lighting equipment. Then you can determine in advance the atmosphere of the completed home.

"Outlets can be placed according to the style of fixtures. Pictures, the completely furnished interior in your mind's eye, place the lighting and choose the fixtures to bring out the greatest beauty of the furnishings, and to set to the decorative motif of the rooms.

"This is how lighting equipment should be purchased to insure lasting satisfaction."

Electric Sink Takes Drudgery From Housework

When a woman stands before her kitchen sink is the time she feels that the line about housekeeping has a hook on the end of it. That is, if the sink is an old fashioned one, but if it is a Kohler Electric sink she is immediately convinced that housekeeping isn't half the job it is painted by her less fortunate sisters.

The Kohler Electric Sink has been installed at the Post-Crescent Model Home and visitors there next Sunday will see it in all its glory.

For a long time an electric dishwasher was merely a pleasant pipe dream like a magic carpet or a clock to make one invisible. But it has become a reality and in the Post-Crescent Model Home a Kohler electric sink will automatically wash the dishes and cleanse pots and pans at the press of a button.

The Kohler electric sink actually washes dishes better than they can be washed by hand, since it makes available in the home the same kind of sanitary dishwashing methods which are used in hospitals and advocated by the medical profession. The electric sink enables scalding water to be used without discomfort or danger to the hands. The sterilizing hot water is dashed against the dishes with a force which insures efficient mechanical cleaning.

Pots and pans have always been the crowning indignity of the unhappy job of washing dishes by hand. Even this most unpleasant duty is taken over by the electric sink which washes pots and pans with the exception of very large or deep kettles and roasters which are beyond its capacity.

It is computed that the time saved by the electric sink in cleaning up after meals is a third to a half of the time usually required.

Not only is the labor of washing dishes taken over by the electric sink, but if really hot water is used for rinsing, the china dishes will retain enough heat to preclude the necessity of wiping. Self drying is recommended by many home economics experts, but the dishes may be wiped if preferred and should be if the rinsing water is not scalding hot. Glasses and silver must of course, be polished with a clean towel to bring out their lustre.

VISITING HOURS

Because the walls of the Post-Crescent Model Home now are being finished with the final coat of colored plaster the building will be open on Sundays only when an attendant is at hand. Tomorrow the attendant will be at the building from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and the public is invited to visit the Model Home during those hours.

Washing No Problem At Model Home

Washing will be no problem in the Post-Crescent Model Home. The Kohler Electric clotheswasher, installed this week and ready for inspection by Sunday visitors makes laundering a pastime for a dainty lady in a bungalow apron instead of a job for a back bent laundress.

This product from the Kohler factory will be of colored enamel enclosing an efficient mechanism that will go to the assertions of the soap advertisements one better in the washing of dainty linens and heavy blankets.

This improved mechanism in a better tub results in exceptionally clean clothes, a saving of time and labor and an ability to wash all fabrics with speed and safety.

The water in the tub travels at the rate of sixty two feet a minute. There is no spot where the sud-stands still. The clothes are opened up and separated by the action of the water. A large amount of soapy water is forced through the clothes.

The result is an unusual degree of cleanliness. The remorseless pressure of the water flushes every bit of dirt out of every garment. The sure hand removes soap as well. Hand rubbing is unnecessary to clean collars and cuffs.

Once upon a time, ladies who never swung a dumbell or did the daily dozen, developed their muscles by wringing soapy, slippery, damp articles of the wash.

The Kohler electric washer, however, of course provides for the assumption of this unpleasant duty. An electric wringer completes the washing job by removing soapy water and soil from the wet clothes by compression—without injury to fabrics or buttons.

It is adjustable to the most convenient working height to eliminate bending and stooping. The tub is self-emptying when the drain hose is lowered; the rust proof metal cover with strong rigid hinges, serves as a tray for clothes, thus saving steps and time.

Improvement, literally troubles the value of the sink to the busy housewife. The cup like strainer with its metal drain control or stopper enables water to be put in the sink itself, and sink used as a pan. When the washing is done, a lift and a twist to the drain lets the water rush out with sufficient force to carry with it all debris except solid matter.

Solid matter gather in the waste cup as the water flows out. Then by means of the handle the cup can be removed and the refuse dumped.

Gas, Electric Equipment Adds To Convenience And Comfort of Model Home

Among the interesting appliances to be installed in the Post-Crescent Model Home by the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. is a buffet model Kelvinator for a bachelor den which makes the men of the household gloriously independent of the war-don of the kitchen.

Midnight raids on the family refrigerator and subsequent embarrassing explanations as to the whereabouts of a missing leg of chicken or half of mince pie will no longer make contrabanders of otherwise honest men. For enclosed in a walnut case, with a combination lock which makes it look like a safe, is a refrigerator containing the whole world for the satisfaction of the nocturnal appetite.

The buffet Kelvinator contains four trays, beneath which is a humidor for cigars.

The majority of the interesting appliances in the Model Home, however, are naturally for the benefit of the women of the household.

There is a Graybar automatic ironer which irons 24 feet of flat goods a minute. An interesting experiment was conducted to determine the time saving value of the automatic ironer as opposed to the old fashioned hand iron. A skillful lady was given the biggest tablecloth obtainable and a flat iron. It took her forty minutes to iron out every wrinkle. Then a Graybar ironer was set before her and a tablecloth of identical size as the one she had just ironed. This time the process took her five minutes.

When the Graybar is not in use, it is a broochin topped Kitchen table. (opened, it is a veritable robot, which finishes lace, ruffles, Robert, ling, or silks as well as any French laundress could do it.

According to its salesman, the automatic ironer has not yet begun to attain the popularity of the electric washing machine, although it is an even greater time saver. One of the reasons for this is that this first time, and are a bit non-plussed by its apparent intricacy. They forget, say the salesmen, that the first time they lifted a flat iron, they may have been a bit non-plussed. The simplicity of the Graybar dawns upon its users after the third shirt, say the salesmen.

A Kelvinator refrigerator will be built in a McDougal unit Kitchen cabinet. No ice man will track with his dripping burden over the floors of the Model Home kitchen, and no pan overflowing beneath the icebox will disturb the peace of the man of the house. The Kelvinator not only manufactures its own refrigeration, but it freezes its own sparkling ice cubes for the water glass, the fruit cocktail, salad, and the "new" desert. The Kelvinator is named after Lord Kelvin who was the first man to discover the principle of artificial refrigeration. He was also instrumental in laying the first cable across the Atlantic, as well as being active in chemistry and other fields of science.

Because experts on home planning agree that the bathroom should be the warmest rooms in the house, HotPoint heaters have been provided for the bathrooms of the Model Home to give them auxiliary heat. Concealed in the walls, they raise the temperature of the bathrooms the additional degrees necessary for the warmth of the bathers.

The Model Home will have two Telechron clocks—one a kitchen clock and the other a grandfather clock. Telechron clocks never require any winding and are never fast nor slow. They are controlled by a master clock at the power plant and never deviate a second from the correct time.

A Universal gas range obtained from the Power company has an exceptional feature in its broiler drawer.

The broiler drawer is constructed on the same general principle as the roller bearing letter filing cabinet—a familiar sight in every modern business office. It does, in fact, operate with the ease and simplicity of a filing cabinet and is as convenient to use for cooking purposes as the gas range cooking top.

The broiler pan rests securely in slides and eliminates all possibility of spilling or dropping food and can be removed by merely sliding it sideways to the right or left. The entire broiling compartment slides out at full length of the broiler pan at a touch of the finger—not only making it possible to turn chops, steak, fish or toast without being removed from the broiler, but also enable the cook to see at a glance the progress of the broiling foods.

In eliminating the necessity of reaching into a hot broiling compartment it is likewise an effective safeguard against burned or scorched hands.

It has long been a recognized fact that broiled foods are not only more appetizing and easily digestible, but also are more nourishing and healthful than fried or oven cooked foods.

Broiled foods, especially, should form an important item in the diet of growing boys and girls to help build and strengthen the developing muscles and tissues and make certain a harder vitality to assure the proper physical and mental development of the child. The health value of broiled food is easily appreciated when it is considered that food retains a greater percentage of its natural and nourishing juices when broiled than when cooked by any other known method of cooking.

Though these facts have been universally recognized for a number of years, and prominent dietitians and physicians have persistently advocated a more extensive and systematic use of broiled food in the home—the difficulties presented in the use of the ordinary type of gas range broiler and its many objectionable features have made broiled foods an almost unknown method of cooking in the average American household.

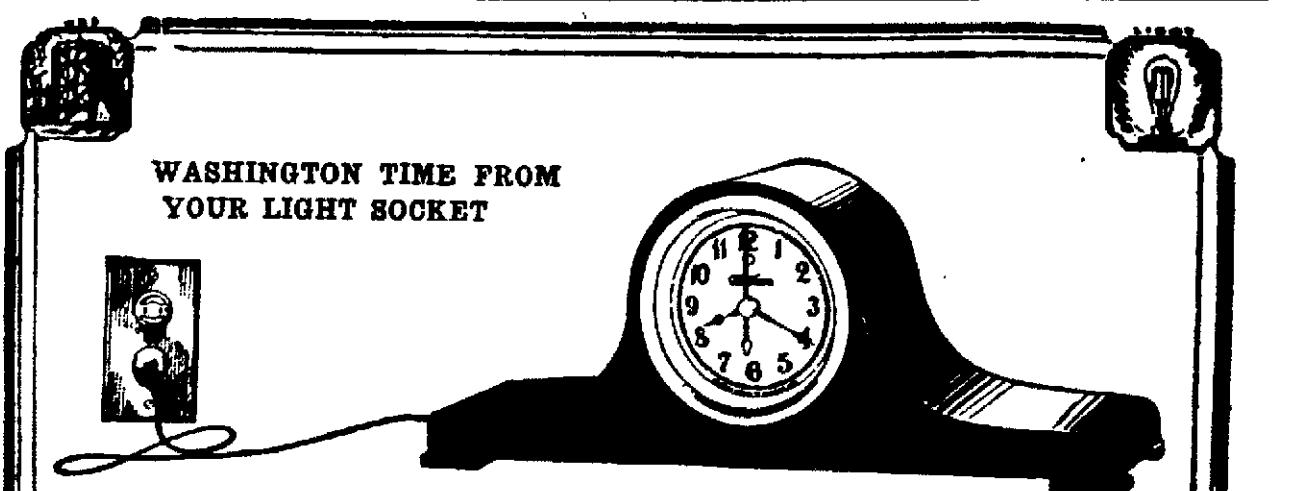

With the improved Universal range in the kitchen of the Model Home, however, broiling will be an everyday method of food preparation. The broiler drawer has an additional rack for toast and can brown from twelve to fifteen places at a time. Besides the broiler compartment the range has an unobtrusive service drawer for the odds and ends which in the ordinary range are stored in an unsightly, unviewed compartment in full view. A heat control enables the housewife to regulate the temperature of the range from 200 to 550 degrees.

The range has a cream porcelain background and a green trim. It is porcelain inside and out in all but the grates and burners.

Sauerkraut or onions on their like boiling on this range will never thicken the air of the Model Home kitchen with their odors, for an exhaust fan, also installed by the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co., keeps the air in the kitchen fresh and clear. If fans have long been used in hotel kitchens, but only recently have been appropriated for more modern homes.

DRY CHARGE

Frank Wippich Is Given Alternative of Spending 60 Days in County Jail

Menasha—Judge Goss of the municipal court at Oshkosh sentenced two men Friday for violation of the state dry law. One was Frank Wippich of Menasha, employee of Peter Kropidowski, who was tried Thursday before a jury and in whose case the jury disagreed. The other was Walter Stern arrested by Sheriff Nelson, following a sale of beer at "102 Ranch" in the town of Menasha.

Wippich was fined $300 and costs or sentenced to serve 60 days in the county jail. Stern must pay $500 and costs or serve three months in jail Kropidowski, according to the testimony, is proprietor of a soft drink parlor in Menasha. He was charged with the sale of intoxicating liquor and with maintaining a public nuisance.

Wippich was arrested in connection with the same alleged events and charged with the sale of intoxicating liquor. After Wippich had entered a plea of guilty, District Attorney Kropidowski, as prosecutor, asked for dismissal of the case against Kropidowski, as asserting he took this action in view of the bartender's plea of guilty and in view of the disagreement of the jury Thursday. Judge Goss dismissed the action.

At the same time that Stern entered a plea of guilty to a charge of sale of intoxicating liquor, A. Schneider, who was alleged to have been in business with him, pleaded not guilty to the same charge. His attorney, Henry Fitzgibbon of Menasha, obtained a change of venue to the circuit court.

Menasha—H. E. Trilling, 69, who has been engaged in the hardware business in Menasha for the last 36 years, died Friday night at his home, 410 Throckmold, of a severe stroke of illness. He was born in Menasha and lived here all his life with the exception of ten years which he spent at Ashland, Kaukauna and Appleton.

Mr. Trilling is survived by his widow; daughter, Miss Daisy Trilling; Maupun and W. G. Trilling, Menasha; three grandchildren; and four sisters, Mrs. Mary Hoch, Duluth, Mrs. Hattie Welnes, Milwaukee; Mrs. George Leberman, Sheboygan; and Mrs. Samuel Hunter, Oshkosh. He was a member of the Masonic order; director of the Bank of Menasha; member of the public library board; chairman of the local Red Cross chapter; and was formerly a member of the board of education and park commission.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at his home and at 2:30 at St. Thomas church with the Masses in charge. The services will be conducted by the Rev. G. Gordon A. Fowkes and burial will be at Oak Hill cemetery.

RETURN FROM MADISON
COMMITTEE HEARINGS

Menasha—J. H. Kuester, superintendent of water and electric distribution, and City Clerk John Jedwabny, Jr., have returned from Madison where they were called during the latter part of the week to attend hearing before the judiciary committee and the committee on the taxation of corporations. One thing that impressed the city clerk was the number of young men between the ages of 20 and 30 that are members of the legislature. The two committees before whom they appeared was made up of members whose ages would average not much more than 25 years. The highway road school which was attended by more than 1,200 persons from all over the state was in session and congested the hotels. All the lodging accommodations the two Menasha men could get was cots.

MENASHA
PERSONALS

Menasha—Frank G. Hoffman, who is recovering from several weeks illness, visited his store Friday for the first time since he left the hospital.

Mrs. Olive Atkins of Kansas City, formerly Miss Margaret Clough of Menasha, submitted to an operation at Theda Clark hospital from which she is recovering.

WEGE, NEUMANN WILLS
ADMITTED TO PROBATE

Neenah—The will of Carl Ferdinand Wege, Neenah, has been admitted to probate. The petition, estimating the value of the estate at $4,500, has just been filed, but a waiver was signed by the heirs-at-law. The testator bequeathed a house and lot at 1018 Henry-st. to a daughter, Mrs. Augusta McCray. The rest of the property is to be divided among six children, Mrs. Lena Conrad, Chicago; William O. Wege, Neenah; Mrs. Anna Kleinman, Oshkosh; Mrs. Mabel Roman, Menasha; and Charles W. Wege, Chicago. William C. Wege of Neenah was named executor.

The will of Edward Neumann of the town of Winchester, has also been admitted to probate. In this case, also, petition has been filed, but a waiver of notice signed. The value of the property is estimated at $5,400. A share of stock is bequeathed to a son, Arthur Neumann. Household furniture is left to two daughters, Mrs. Emma Zander and Miss Meta Neumann. All other property is left to the widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Neumann, who is also named as executrix.

WOMAN BURNED TWO WEEKS AGO BETTER

Menasha—Mrs. Norman Metoxen, who was severely burned two weeks ago in the burning of the infant mobile store, has been removed from Theda Clark hospital to her home on Madison. Her condition is much improved.

LEGION CONSIDERS
ANOTHER BIG PARTY

Neenah—American legion will hold its monthly meeting Monday evening at St. A. Cook armory. Arrangements will be made for another party to be held at the Valley inn and also to arrange for entertainment features at each of the monthly meetings. The executive committee met Friday evening at the city hall to discuss projects to come before the Monday evening meeting.

ZONING CASE IS PUT OFF ONE WEEK

Trial of Neenah Undertaker Will Be Held Next Saturday

Neenah—The legality of the zoning ordinance adopted by the city will be tested next Saturday in Justice Harless' court when LaVerne Pelton, undertaker, will have a hearing on a charge of taking care of a corpse at his home on E. Franklin-ave and allowing the body to remain there so that relatives could view it before burial. The case was to have been tried this Saturday, but was postponed. Mr. Pelton conducts a funeral home at his residence on Franklin-ave, and neighbors objected to it. As the home is in the residential district, a warrant was issued for his arrest on complaint that he was conducting a business in a restricted district. Mr. Pelton appeared early in the week and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

LATEST NEWS OF THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

U. S. HAS GROWN STYLE CONSCIOUS

Change Is Noticeable in Motor Industry, Says Official of Buick Co.

BY C. W. CHURCHILL
(General Sales Manager Buick Motor Co.)

The United States has grown style conscious—a factor that is playing a tremendously vital role in dictating the form, color and beauty of the modern automobile as well as even the most prosaic merchandise—and the development of art in the automotive industry, which recently has begun in a big way, will play an increasingly important part in the future.

In all our necessities of life, utilitarian value has come first, to be followed later by style and beauty value.

Naturally, this growing consciousness is based on the widespread prosperity of the country, which enables the people to satisfy their tastes for beauty as well as comfort. As a result, style and beauty in automobile bodies and interiors are developing into a real and distinct art.

TASTES MOST CRITICAL

This is not alone peculiar to the automobile industry, because it is apparent in many other lines of commodities, but naturally becomes more pronounced in those commodities which represent a large individual investment. There are a few individual purchases in life, outside of a home, that require a larger initial expenditure than a motor car. In such large purchases it is obvious that tastes are most critical.

Another important factor is the generally growing recognition that there should be no distinction of art—as between something apart and sacred and the expression of art in the life of the people. The expression of the fabric of their social and industrial life—and certainly should form part of their everyday life. There is no reason why even the most utilitarian article should not at the same time possess beauty of line and color and adornment.

This trend of art and beauty in the motor car industry does not signify a virtual revolution. It is possible in a large production industry it costs are to be kept down. The style design of a good car can stand upon its merit and prove itself.

Style, change slowly and style appeal will be built up slowly. It has taken years to bring cars to the mechanical excellence they possess today and it will take time for the various large companies to evolve designs that will be distinctive and fundamental. These fundamental designs will evolve for the various companies as the mechanical features of the cars have evolved.

BODY STYLE BIG FACTOR

Naturally body style is a potent factor in car sales and will be the stimulant that will help in the evolution of finer and more artistic lines. Let it be a stimulant that must be handled carefully, lest it defeat its very purpose.

It strikes me that European body design will have a marked influence on the design of our cars. The rich European background of art and culture has given them a knowledge, taste, and desire for the beautiful which can enable us to enrich our products. Naturally, whatever we adopt will have to be translated into terms indigenous to our country and our needs. Mechanically, for our needs at least, I doubt whether there is much that we can borrow from our European cousins.

During the last five years we have made marked improvements in the beauty of lines of our cars and interior equipment. In fact we made a greater development in body design in these years than in the previous 10 years. And undoubtedly we will make greater strides in the next five years than in any other five years since the beginning of the industry.

MONTHLY MILEAGE OF CARS TO MOUNT

Record Will Culminate in July and August During Vacation Period

Steadily mounting monthly automobile mileage will be observed for the next six months, according to A. B. Scherle, of the Appleton Tire Shop, which will culminate in July and August with the highest monthly mileage of the year.

The greater mileages in July and August are accounted for by the fact that most persons are on vacation during those months and do more driving than at other times in the year. A survey by The Miller Rubber Company, whose tires are handled by Mr. Scherle, indicates that ten per cent of the year's driving is done in each of those two months.

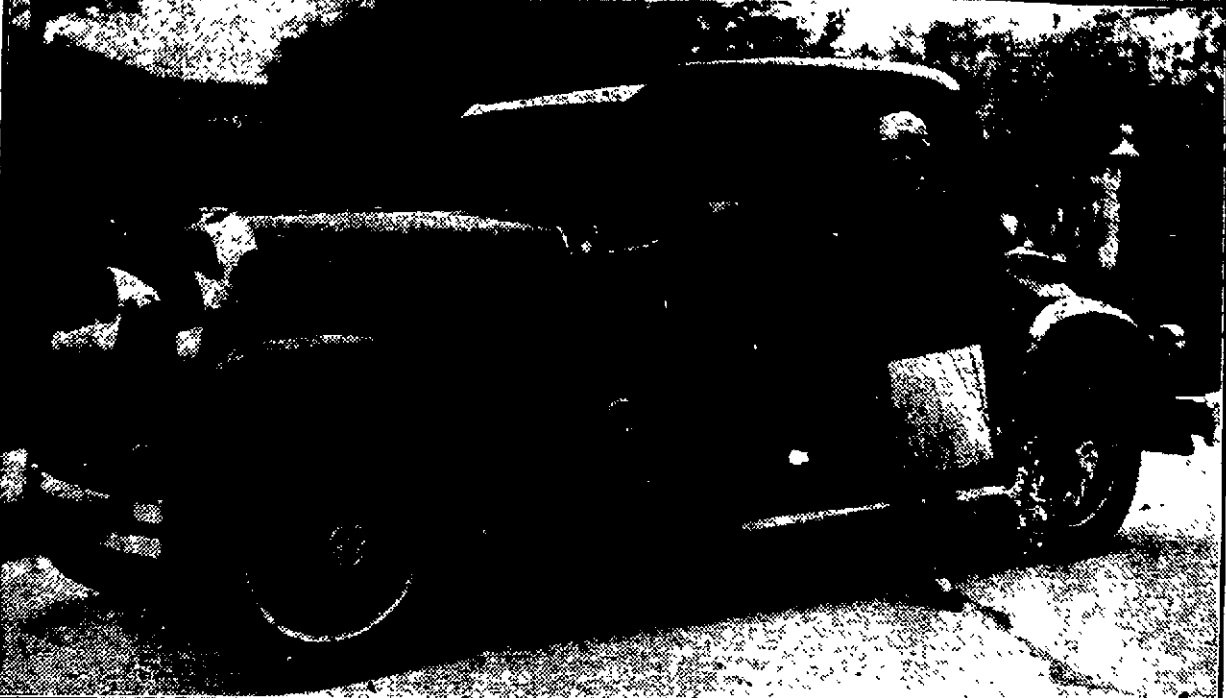

January appears as the month when least driving is done, taking the country as a whole. The average driver however will travel two thirds as many miles in January as he will in any month of midsummer. In spite of less favorable weather conditions.

There is slightly more driving in February than in January, with a considerable increase in March and April. Beginning in October the monthly average decreases steadily until January.

While summer mileages still are higher than those of winter, Mr. Scherle asserts that winter driving is much more prevalent than it was a few years ago. Roads are better, cars are easier to start and operate, and people have adopted the automobile as a year round method of transportation, when ten years ago the average driver stored his car throughout the winter months.

Lengthened wheel base is one of the 64 improvements in the 1929 greater Hudson and this provides additional leg room both front and rear.

'Preferred' Blonde Prefers Oakland

Ruth Taylor, star of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes", a Paramount film, registers a decided preference for the new 1929 Oakland All-American Coupe.

PONTIAC BIG SIX ON DISPLAY HERE

New Model Has Big Car Appearance and Big Car Value, Dealers Report

Fulfilling advance promises of big car performance, big car appearance and big car value, the Pontiac Big Six, essentially a brand new car from radiator to tail lamp, went on display at the showrooms of O. R. Kloehe Co., Inc., local Oakland and Pontiac dealers.

While only rounding out its third anniversary, the Pontiac Six enters upon its fourth year of definitely established volume leader, in which position officials of the Oakland Motor Car Company are confident it will mode firmly entrenched itself by reason of the extraordinary value evident in the car for 1929.

All bodies are entirely new, the 11r. including a 2-door sedan, 4-door sedan, coupe, sport roadster with folding rumble seat, sport phaeton, convertible cabriolet with folding rumble seat, and a landaulet sedan. The last two types are innovations in the Pontiac line, having the appearance of custom built bodies.

Outstanding features contributing to the extraordinary performance of the new car are a larger and more powerful engine; new counter-weighted crankshaft; new harmonic balancer; new internal self-energizing brakes; new rear axle; new transmission; larger carburetor, intake manifold and valves; wider springs with new shackles self-adjusting for wear; increased valve lift, and new Hotchkiss drive.

Striking new body creations by Fisher impart to the entire line individuality and custom-like features entirely new in the Pontiac price class. From the gleaming high radiator shell to the gracefully molded rear panel, harmonious lines and brilliant chrome finished exterior hardware radiate smartness, distinction and individuality.

The shell of the radiator, narrow and built up to 35 inches in height, gives to the front the appearance of power and fleetness borne out by the performance of the car. No emblem or name plate marks the front of the radiator shell, but the familiar "Chief Pontiac" radiator cap ornament is retained. A chrome plated bar extends vertically from top to bottom of the radiator core.

Larger members, full crowned and with a beaded edge, flare out in a graceful sweep over the smart low wheels. A forged fender tie rod replaces the pressed steel rod and lamp support formerly used. Headlamps on four body types come in full chrome plate, while on the remaining models the rims are chrome plated.

A full side view shows to best advantage the original lines of the new car. The slightly arched window design, with new paneling effect between the windows; a high waist line and unique new cowl design distinguish the Fisher bodies. This new belt moulding starts at the cowl and completely encircles the body. It is not continued down the hood, as in the Oakland models, but a new curved pillar line, quite similar in appearance to one of America's costliest cars, runs from the center panel on the cowl down to the rear of the hood.

A smart new louvre grouping sets the car instantly apart in traffic. Instead of the conventional manner, all are grouped in one panel and extend horizontally across the hood.

A slender and brilliantly finished cowl band with parking lamps adds to the exterior beauty of appearance.

No more significant and striking identification mark prevails today than the red Indian head which the man who trails behind sees when the Pontiac passes him. The Pontiac will maintain a high degree of speed with remarkable endurance, up hill and down, and at the end of the journey be none the worse for the test to which it has been subjected, according to its many supporters.

Several of the 64 improvements that mark the greater Hudson of 1929 are primarily concerned with appearance and the comfort and convenience of the bodies. One of these, giving a decided custom appearance to the car, is the addition of a trunk rack as standard equipment on all models.

A rain-proof cowl ventilator which becomes a baffle plate when opened in wet weather, is one of the 64 improvements introduced in the greater Hudson.

One of the 64 improvements incorporated as standard equipment in the 1929 greater Hudson is the double action hydraulic shock absorber, used front and rear on all chassis.

AUTO INDUSTRY IS LARGE NEWS SOURCE

Press Best Medium to Inform Public, Marmon Head Believes

Probably more news of up-to-the-minute interest to the American public comes from the automobile industry than any other single industrial or commercial source and the average man now looks for and expects to find in his daily newspapers the current events and developments in this largest of American industries. Similarly, points out G. M. Williams, president of the Marmon Motor Car Company, the automobile industry regards the American newspaper as the best medium through which the public may be informed of its progress and of the constant forward march of automotive developments. Mr. Wagner represents Marmon in Appleton.

"With practically every man and woman in the United States vitally interested in happenings in the automotive world," Mr. Williams said, "the newspaper, because of its very character, has become our most important medium for automobile news and advertising. Is it any wonder, then, that a larger sum is spent each year for automobile advertising in newspapers than in any other medium?"

"Magazines, billboards, direct-mail, radio and other advertising mediums have their places, to be sure, and it is no discount to their importance to say that the newspaper is the leading factor in the automobile advertising standpoint.

"Take the annual automobile show, for example. Without the newspapers, it would be exceedingly difficult for the average man to learn of the various exhibits at the show, of the new products of the manufacturers or of the advances of the last twelve months, now ready for inspection in the automobiles of 1929. It would even be difficult, in fact, for a man to learn that an automobile show was in progress.

"Of the thousands that pass through the doors of the Greater Hudson Palace or other places of exhibit in the country it is safe to say that nine of every ten persons were attracted to the show by news or advertising in the daily newspapers. Often, interest is aroused by the particular ad of one manufacturer, but that is sufficient to draw its reader to the automobile show to inspect the products of all manufacturers.

"Each one of the millions of automobile owners in the United States is vitally interested in the progress of the industry which supplies him with his everyday transportation. When he peruses his newspaper, he expects to find, among the other events of the day, the news of the various automobile manufacturers, and he reads this news because he is constantly turning over in his mind the problem of purchasing his next car.

"Every man who owns an automobile now is a potential buyer of another, either to supplant his present car or to replace it sometime in the near future with a newer and more up-to-date model. A motor car is just as much a part of his existence as is the newspaper and, therefore, he reads the latter to learn the news of the former.

"The American press has closely linked itself with and aided the progress of the automobile industry and the industry, in turn, regards the newspaper as the best medium through which to inform the American citizen of its efforts to provide better and better individual transportation."

FLIES OVER STONE MOUNTAIN IN REO

Peter DePaolo, Internationally Known Racer, Pilots Plane

Stone mountain, situated sixteen miles from Atlanta, Georgia, and world-famous for the gigantic memorial sculpture being carved on its face, saw one of the most remarkable public exhibitions ever offered by a motor car, on Sunday, January 20. Peter DePaolo, nationally known racing pilot, driving a fully-equipped, stock model Flying Cloud "The Master" brougham, climbed to the summit of the mountain—the first time such an achievement has been accomplished by an enclosed stock car. About ten thousand skeptical spectators watched the ascent and were astonished. They saw the car with two passengers climb to the steepest section of the incline where DePaolo stopped it and took on three more passengers. Then with its load of six, the car restarted without the slightest jerk, backslip or spinning of rear wheels and shot up to the summit, to the tumultuous cheering of the crowd.

The performance is especially remarkable when one considers that there is no road up the mountain—simply nature's surface of craggy, filled, wavy, volcanic rocks, strewn with large, loose boulders and jagged slabs, over which most drivers would not attempt to pass. The Reo splashed through puddles caused by recent rain and surmounted slippery patches of wet granite and mud. At no time was any external assistance given to the car—no pushing—no holding to keep it from sliding backward.

Having reached the summit, DePaolo gave a remarkable exhibition of the efficiency of Reo's internal hydraulic 4-wheel brakes when on the down slope. He picked out the slipperiest, steepest route he could find on the west side of the noble mountain, and proved that, regardless of the seemingly impassable angle, the brakes would stop the car almost instantly and hold it in a fashion that reminded one of a fly on a wall.

Then, to make it a perfect day, DePaolo, with four passengers hunched up a level, almost deserted stretch of concrete road, and, without any adjustment, demonstrated that the car could reach a speed of well over seventy miles an hour. Atlanta newspaper men were the passengers.

The entire public demonstration was made without any "doping" of the car or "preparation" of the mountain side whatsoever, or resorting to any special alteration of equipment. It was a stock model throughout. Native residents of Stone Mountain declare that it is the first time that any closed car has ever reached the summit. Furthermore, DePaolo did not make the ascent merely once. He did it three times, giving newspaper men a private demonstration the day before the publicly announced event.

Jaunty but careful detail of appearance and appointments in today's Pontiac Six explains the nationwide favor being accorded "the chief of the Six's."

Spayed rear springs is one of the 64 improvements of the greater Hudson and it is this type of suspension that gives the 1929 model its extreme roadability and reduces side sway to the absolute minimum. The springs are mounted at an angle to the frame, extend outward and afford maximum body support.

COMFORT FEATURES NEW CHEVROLET CAR

Several Mechanical Improvements Included in Modern Line

Reflecting scores of advances, resultant from four years intensive research and the economies made possible by great volume production the new line of six cylinder valve-in-head cars which Chevrolet is offering this year in the price range of a four, are now on exhibit at the S. and O. Chevrolet Co., 511 West College Ave.

Since the announcement last November of the new six, which provided one of the most sensational news items of the year, motor circles have watched with interest the public favor accorded the new Chevrolet which General Motors officials predict will again make motor car history in 1929.

Known as "The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History," the new cars are acclaimed by company officials as superior to any previous Chevrolet models. In beauty, power, speed smoothness and riding comfort the new cars display obvious improvements over their famous four cylinder predecessors.

Seven models, two open and five closed cars, comprise the line. Among the closed models are the coach, sedan, sport cabriolet, coupe and convertible landau, the latter model making its appearance in the low price field for the first time. The open models are the roadster and the phaeton, which supplants the touring car.

The line is characterized by numerous comfort and safety features, which include the adjustable driver's seat in all the closed models, the new beam headlamps and the quiet positive four wheel brakes.

The new six cylinder engine is the development of over four years work by Chevrolet engineers cooperating with General Motors research and development staffs. It embodies several outstanding mechanical advancements. There is a new acceleration pump, which assures the speedy get-away so essential to driving in congested traffic; the new hot spot manifold and the revolutionary new design combustion chamber which allows for unusually high compression with ordinary fuels.

But it is the beauty of the new Chevrolet line that will catch the eye of the crowd. All the models are provided with a lustrous finish, and each has its own smart color combination. All are roomier than a year ago, and display many refinements exterior and interior not found in last year's line.

New to the line this year is the distinctive convertible landau, which achieves a note, strikingly continental by lowering the rear quarter of the top.

All of the bodies are rigidly braced, according to new Fisher engineering discoveries, to take care of road shocks, strains and stresses. All, too, are of famous Fisher composite construction, wood re-inforcing steel and steel re-inforcing wood throughout.

From every appearance factor the new Chevrolet bodies offer the latest and best in motor car design. The new radiator shell is manufactured of brass plated with chromium. Chromium is a non-rusting metal noted for its hardness, and guaranteed to retain its lustrous finish indefinitely. The headlamps are fitted with chromium plated rims and mounted on chromium plated standards.

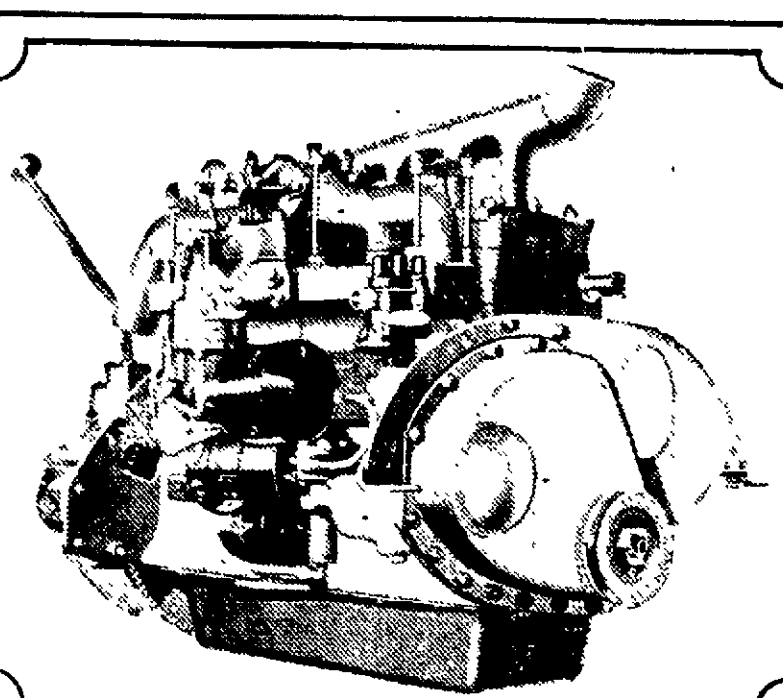

The new running boards and the new hood design, enhanced by 15 narrow louvers grouped at the rear of the hood, are other outstanding beauty features. The sweeping one-piece fenders are rigidly supported and in perfect harmony with the design expressed throughout.

The color combinations in the 1929 Chevrolet line are completely new. The aristocratic convertible landau is finished in Crockett brown with Mistino gray belt and striped in Shallmar orange. Window mouldings are in Mistino gray, and upholstery is in mohair. Standard equipment includes steel disc wheels, 450 by 20 balloon tires, stop light, smoking set and robe rail.

Buyers who desire all the swank and snap of a sport type automobile can now secure it in a low-priced car. Six wire wheels, the two spurs mounted in front fender wells, with a folding trunk rack for the rear, form a sporty appearance on today's Pontiac Six. In keeping with Pontiac's high standard of quality, the rims and spare wheel mouldings are chrome plated to give bright appearance and prevent corrosion.

Features ordinarily associated with custom work are included as standard in the 64 improvements of the greater Hudson. One of these, double doors in the luxury class, is rear seats which, as well as front seats, are adjustable.

New Essex Gives 70 Miles Plus

New Essex Challenger Motor Gives 70 Miles Plus

A car speed of 70 miles and over is claimed for Essex The Challenger, by which cognomen the Hudson Motor Car Company distinguishes the latest models of its lower-priced car.

The increase in speed is partly due to the fact that the power of the motor has been increased by 24 per cent, to an actual delivered 55 horsepower. Among the engine changes to which are added several other flexibility are said to be due are a larger bore, higher compression, increased valve lift, a new cylinder head and combustion chamber, improved valve timing, new location of spark plugs, new lubrication system, new cooling fan, new muffler and other details.

The exterior of the motor is somewhat changed by the omission of the former hot-air stove. The problem of preheating the fuel is solved by the use of an exhaust-heated Marvel carburetor which, moreover, includes automatic and manual heat controls for different seasons and climates. Gasoline consumption is still lower than before, it is stated. Other motor features are an air cleaner, an oil pump of larger capacity, and new main and connecting rod bearings incorporating a novel lubrication scheme.

Carburetion is aided by the adoption of a "vacuum booster" functioning on the Venturi principle and assuring prompt starting and taking care of exceptional demands on the gasoline supply such as occurs in climbing steep grades and in traveling at top speed for long periods.

The crankcase oil reservoir is now in two sections for more expeditious servicing. An important motor lubrication adjunct is an electric gauge on the dash, indicating the level of the oil in the crankcase. This feature makes it unnecessary for the driver to leave his seat or lift the hood to ascertain whether additional motor lubricant is needed.

The highest peak of its history. The additional numbers will bring the total up to 150,000 men. With a view to preventing an influx of men from all parts of the country it was announced that preference will be given to the unemployed of Detroit. Several months will be required to line and place the additional force.

It is estimated that last year the five-day week for both machines and men reduced production on the new Model A by 100,000 cars under what it would have been had the factories operated on a six-day basis. What the change really amounts to is the employment of another day's supply of men and the gain of another day's production of cars, without disturbing the present policy of giving each man two days of leisure each week.

Plans for assigning six men to five jobs, in order that each man may have two rest days a week, have imposed a heavy task on the Ford staff. Two men in each group of six will have two consecutive days off. Others will have off days through the week. But all men will have Sundays off.

The causes of the new arrangement are pressure of orders and economy of operation. With an additional day per week, production can be increased at least $500 on the present schedule, and production costs lowered through the additional day's use of the plant.

"A six-day week is all right for machines," said Henry Ford, "but a five-day week is enough for men. We would let nothing interfere with the two days of leisure for the men."

DODGE CUTS PRICE ON SENIOR SIXES

New Price Schedule in Effect at Once, Announcement Says

Substantial price reductions on all models in the Dodge Brothers Senior Six line were announced today by Walter Motor Co. local Dodge Brothers dealers.

The new price schedule goes into effect immediately. The models on which reductions have been made include the two and four-door sedans, landau sedan, two-passenger coupe and roadster. The new prices now range from $1495 for the two-door sedan to $1595 for the landau sedan. Proportionate reductions have been made on the four-door sedan, coupe and roadster.

The Senior Six was the first creation of the Dodge Brothers division of Chrysler Motors under the directing genius of Walter P. Chrysler and was introduced soon after the Dodge Brothers organization. It is the latest and finest product of Dodge Brothers craftsmanship, styled to the newest vogue in custom design.

"These new low prices on the Senior line," said Charles W. Matheson, General Sales Manager for Dodge Brothers, "are made in accordance with the benefit of economies made through the use of more efficient manufacturing methods and the savings of Chrysler Motors great unified purchasing power. All these savings now are passed on to the Dodge Brothers public in new and much lower prices and for a still better product."

Among several of the 64 improvements of the 1929 greater Hudson which make it appear that comfort was of first consideration in designing these new cars, are rear seats widened to accommodate three persons with room to spare.

Among the 64 improvements in the greater Hudson is roomier bodies. Widened and lengthened, they also have extra head room, obtained in all models by mounting the bodies on flanges bolted to the outside of the frame.

MORE MEN, GREATER PRODUCTION PLANNED

Workers on Job Five Days but Plant Operates Six Days Per Week

Just as the year 1929 closed the Ford Motor Company announced that in order to meet a five-day week for employees and at the same time operate the factories six days a week, the Company will employ an additional 30,000 men and increase its production 20 per cent before March 1, 1929.

At the time the announcement was made the Detroit employment roll of the Company was already at

IF YOU RETIRED

Exactly what would the reader of this column do if he should retire from his life's occupation?

Probably he has one or two ideas—travel, for example—which would occupy him happily for a few months. But how about the years beyond that? Even golf can pall.

A new play in New York concerns the plight of a druggist who sells his store, passes through an agony of idleness, and then buys it back again.

Between the sale and the purchase he tries to convince himself that he is enjoying his leisure, that life ahead of him does not seem empty. But he can't make it go. He tries fitting jigsaw puzzles. He tends the furnace. He plays rummy and more rummy. The telephone gives him an eager instant of excitement every time it rings and he runs pathetically to answer it. He meddles with family matters he has always left to his wife, and ends by forcing his daughter into an elopement, breaking his wife's heart and losing the cook. In desperation at last he returns to the old apothecary shop, the old smells, the only things in life he can enjoy.

He has no capacity, as a matter of fact, to enjoy anything else; and he is one of millions in that position. As a business country, perhaps it is well that doing a good job, winning and fulfilling a contract, taking a profit and bragging about it are the sole imaginable happiness of so many people. It is this fact, perhaps, which keeps them pegging away. But as individuals, the people who do the pegging are robbed of much that makes life worth while.

A self-inventory to discover just what he should do if he should retire and step over into years of leisure would be a good thing for any man. Has he any internal resources of amusement and pleasure at all? Any appreciation of sheer living for its own sake, aside from the daily material task to make a living possible? How far would his reading interests go? His appreciations of art, music, nature?

The ability to enjoy leisure is the thing we call culture. It is laughed down in many circles. But the druggist who sold out could have used a little of it.

HOOVER'S CABINET

The Washington correspondents seem to be agreed that regardless of the men Mr. Hoover picks for his cabinet, he himself will exercise a far greater degree of control over the policies of the various departments than Washington has seen since the days of Wilson and Roosevelt.

Somewhat, we can't help feeling that this is all to the good. The theory of a hands-off policy, under which each department head runs his own organization pretty much as he sees fit, is a very good one, but when any given official happens to be weak or venal it has woful results—as witness, for instance, the cases of Mr. Fall and Mr. Daugherty.

Mr. Hoover has the country's confidence to a rare degree. The announcement that he proposes to "run things" himself will be accepted generally as an indication that we are going to have a capable, energetic government.

HOW BRITAIN FIGHTS ACCIDENTS

When the British undertake to deal with a puzzling situation by law, they can be expected to be very thorough about it.

The British parliament is now considering a bill designed to reduce traffic accidents. It goes much farther than any law the United States has yet considered.

To begin with, it would license all drivers, make revocation of a license mandatory on conviction of careless driving and compel every autoist to carry liability insurance. It would install mechanical governors on all autos to keep them from exceeding the speed limit. It would borrow from the rules of navigation a provision requiring any driver, when he sees any danger of a collision, to stop his car at once.

These are drastic measures. The British don't do things by halves.

WHO WILL PAY IT?

A congressional effort is again being made this year to abolish the Pullman surcharge of one-half the price of a Pullman ticket, this half being turned over to the railroads.

Three years ago a very natural agitation to have this charge abolished was carried up to the interstate commerce commission. That body after a long investigation decided the charge was justified. The Pullman company provides the cars. But the railroads have to pull them, and that means fewer passengers in heavier cars than in the regular coaches. They must provide extra switching and parking of Pullman cars in terminals. They furnish club and observation cars free of additional charge to Pullman passengers.

Much more important than these facts of actual expense to the railroads, however, is the question who would make up the revenue lost if the Pullman surcharge should be abolished.

The net profit from all passenger service for all American railroads last year was $26,691,000 according to railroad figures. The Pullman surcharge paid the railroads $40,195,000. With the surcharge abolished the net loss indicated on all passenger service would have been more than $10,000,000. The interstate commerce commission would simply be required to make this up—as well as the lost profit, since the railroads still fall short of a fair return—by making day coach passengers and freight customers pay higher fares and rates. Why should they? Even if it be admitted that Pullman travel is no longer a luxury but a necessity, why should freight users and coach passengers stand the extra cost of accommodating Pullman travelers?

TURNING TOWARD ASIA

The emergence of the United States as a great Asiatic power is described in the current Review of Reviews by Nicholas Roosevelt, student of far eastern affairs.

In the future, says Roosevelt, the United States will play the leading part in a new world in which Canada, Japan, China, Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines will form a trading community unparalleled in wealth and opportunity.

Our trade across the Pacific, he points out, has grown from $283,000,000 in 1900 to $2,064,000,000 in 1927, and is still going up. But he warns that "prestige" counts for a great deal in the far east, and that America's commercial and industrial advance there would be greatly hampered if we let our naval strength lapse.

Whether this last point be correct or not, there is no question but that tremendous opportunities are emerging on our west coast. Some huge new fortunes will be built by the Americans who see them ahead of their fellows.

CRIMINALS AND LAWYERS

A Boston pastor, discussing crime and criminals in a recent Sunday evening sermon, remarked that no lawyer should try to get an acquittal for a man he knows to be guilty.

To the ordinary layman that sounds like good sense. Yet the thing happens every day, in every city in the land. There never yet was a criminal with money who was unable to get a good lawyer.

Of course, the thing isn't quite as simple as it sounds. There are many cases where there are mitigating circumstances to a man's guilt, and such a man is entitled to have a lawyer plead his case for him. But it happens often that a man who richly deserves prison is set free because he had a lawyer whose ethics were governed by his fee. And that is one of the chief reasons for the prevailing distrust of our courts.

The slightest movement will serve to wind up a particularly sensitive watch invented by a Lancashire (England) watchmaker. If it is worn continuously, a "free wheel" prevents it getting overwound.

In 1927 22,587,000 miles were flown by aircraft on regular commercial routes throughout the world, compared with 1,170,000 miles in 1919.

Blinks—Do you believe all you hear? Jinks—Well, not when I'm listening to my wife broadcasting what's the matter with me.

"Mother," said Bobby, "did you tell father that I wanted a radio set?" "Yes, dear, but he said he couldn't afford it." "I know he'd say that. What did you do then?" "I told him how much you desired it and argued in favor of it, but 'twas no use." "Oh, mother, if it'd been something you wanted yourself you'd gone into 'steries and then you'd got it."

KNEW WITHOUT THINKING

Teacher—"Now, Willie, if James gave you a dog and David gave you a dog, how many dogs would you have?" Willie—"Four."

Teacher—"Now, dear, think hard. Would you have four if James and David each gave you one?" Willie—"Yep. You see, I got two dogs at home now."

She hurried into the shop as though she had not a moment to spare. "I want a book for my husband," she said. "It's his birthday tomorrow, and I want to give it to him as a present. Show me what you have please," she continued, without pausing to take breath. "Nothing too expensive, mind—and I don't want anything too cheap, either. He's not very fond of sport, so don't show me anything in that line. For goodness sake, don't offer me any of those trashy novels, and no matter how much you try to persuade me, I don't want anything in the way of history or biography. Come now, I'm in a dreadful hurry. I've already wasted too much time here."

"Yes, madam," replied the assistant, as he picked up a little red-bound book. "Here's an excellent volume entitled, 'How to Manage a Loud Speaker.'"

AN AWFUL TEST

Mary: "I wish I could test Jim's love for me."

Ethel: "Why not show him your family album, my dear?"

A little fellow, aged 5, arrived home from school while the family was all at the lunch table. With a disgusted look on his face he said: "Say, ma, some of the kids in our class don't know how to spell 'sarcastic'."

"Well, dear," replied his mother, "how do you spell it?"

"Met," he asked. "Oh, I was one of them."

"Yes, they're still very much in love!"

"Really?"

"Rather. When she's away she writes to him whether she wants money or not."

I saw a woman on the street the other day with one side of her face entirely black.

Is it possible?

Sure; the other side was black too.

The late Booker T. Washington used to tell a story of his meeting a colored woman and asking, "Well, Miranda, where are you going?" "The 'con' nowhere, Mr. Washington," was the reply. "I've been where I've got."

The newly wed, beautiful-but-dumb young thing dashed into the house in the greatest of anguish.

"Oh, Hector," she wailed. "I've been bitten by a dog!"

"There, there, darling," soothed the brand-new husband. "don't worry. Just you go and put some peroxide on it."

"But—I-I can't," she sobbed. "It-it's run away."

The United States supported by Great Britain had submitted to France, a proposal for immediate withdrawal of all troops from Russia. It was learned from authoritative sources that day, Mrs. E. L. Madison who had been employed as an accountant by the Wisconsin and Northern railroad while her husband served in the navy, had resigned her position to join Mr. Madison at Kenosha where he had accepted the position of assistant business manager of the Kenosha Herald. Lester Koch employed in a clerical capacity, was to succeed Mrs. Madison.

POISONING BY HOME MADE WINE

A man aged 33 years, woolen weaver by trade, consulted his physician because of constant pain in the upper abdomen and lower chest, with tenderness in the abdomen. He was so anemic that the doctor suspected internal bleeding. After a few days the doctor sent the patient to hospital on suspicion of perforated gastric ulcer.

In the hospital they explored the region where the trouble seemed to be, and found no gastric ulcer, but an acute appendicitis. They removed the appendix. But the patient went right on having bellyache just the same.

He rested at home for a few days, but the trouble continued. It was this ungrateful conduct on the part of some patients. Really, you never can tell what trick a patient may be trying to play on you when he comes complaining of bellyache with variations. But this fellow wasn't permitted to laugh long, I can assure you. After a week or two of his cursing on further study of his case brought to light a stippled or mottled appearance of red corpuscles under the microscope. This peculiar spotty appearance of these cells in the blood suggests poisoning, particularly lead poisoning.

However, the symptoms all subsided before the patient went home from the hospital.

He rested at home four weeks, then returned to work. Three or four weeks later he began to have the old pains again. This time the doctor was on the alert, and immediately had a good look at the patient's gums. Sure enough, there was a distinct bluish line near the edge of the gums, and this is another common sign of lead poisoning. The pains subsided after a few days treatment with mag. sulph., better known as Epsom salt. Magnesium sulphate presumably aids in dissolving lead from the tissues and blood and eliminating it from the body. Once more the patient returned to work.

None of his fellow workers had any signs of lead poisoning, so the source was probably not occupational.

Inquiry into the man's habits elicited the information that he had consumed about 15 gallons of elderberry wine, 5 gallons of grape wine and 1 gallon of cider since the preceding fall. Between whines he worries along on home made beer. Examination of this brew disclosed no lead in it. The man's wife and children drank the beer, too, but they showed no signs of lead poisoning. They had not participated in the consumption of the wine, however.

Ah, ha, as Hawkshaw would say, the case begins to present features of interest, my dear Bonely.

Well, after a good deal of questioning, doubtless enough to make a book, it was found that the man had been in the habit of withdrawing wine and cider from kegs or jugs through a rubber tube that had been used in a presolite torch. He started the siphonage by sucking the beer or wine through the tube into his mouth.

Analysis of cider, wine and the rubber tube showed that the cider contained 0.5 per million lead, the wine 0.7 per million, and the section of tube 13 per cent lead, or the whole tube weighing approximately three-four pound contained, say, 100 grains of lead a good teaspoonful. Evidently the source of lead in the beverage was the rubber tube, which had been in use six or seven years.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A lot of us dyeing
A few months ago a reader sent in her recipe for dyeing hair. It was simple and harmless, and so we printed it here. She advised dissolving a piece of copperas (that is sulphate of iron) the size of a kernel of corn in a pint of ordinary black tea. She did not give further instructions, but we assume she uses the mixture or lotion to brush or comb into the hair every day. Several other readers have sent in this, both men and women who want to keep the hair dark or conceal the graying.

And as to the statements made that neighboring counties have their roads open, I personally have my doubts as to those statements. Just Monday evening, Jan. 28, I made a special call to Shawano county where they were supposed to have had their roads plowed with open, and to my surprise the report I received was that the location of their snow plows was then unknown, and they have

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Those obscure Hungarian artists who for years have pounded out their native tunes upon the cymbalom in East Side cafes, have suddenly been captured by the uptowners. Half a dozen of the wisest, if less esthetic youngsters, have become the vogue among the night prowlers, who ever search for transient novelty.

Down in Second avenue, where Houston street forms a "T," or up in the Nineties, where the gypsy bands cast romantic spells, the cymbalom has long been the favorite of instruments among the dark-eyed, ebony-haired sons and daughters of Hungary who seek to recapture fragments of home atmosphere.

The food is native, the music, native and the wine, if not native, seems to pass when shot with seltzer. For the most part, the patrons are native. Now and then a gypsy cafe comes along to lure away the playboys and playgirls of the Broadway belt—but they have never been captured by the novelty-seekers in the sense that the Russian cafes have.

Within two brief years the largest of the "balalaika" resorts of Second avenue have all but passed from the hands of the Russians into the possession of the slummers. The walls now carry typical American advertisements of the phonograph records made by the balalaika players, while the waiters, in trick suits and blouses, come weekly to look more and more like chorus men in a Schubert revue. The "Russian" cigarettes have a stage property look and cost 50 per small box. Commercialism seems to have moved in.

Now, perchance, the palaces of the cymbalom will go the same way. The cymbalom, by the way, resembles a baby grand piano from which the top has been stripped. The playing is done directly on the piano wires. The musician uses padded sticks and goes through the motion of an xylophonist.

How recurrently the personages of yesterday's tragedies and comedies drift by in Manhattan! Now they are here, now there. Now they are atop the world. Now they are drifting with the stream. One forgets them only to be reminded of them.

Thus, way out in Harlem—way out where 125th street ushers in the "black belt," I came upon Evelyn Nesbit the other night—again an entertaining in a cabaret.

Then just a night or two ago, at one of the snapper night clubs, where high collars and "formal attire" are demanded, who should I see but singing, dancing and gassing but Fatty Arbuckle. He, too, has started up the ladder a dozen times since the tragic afternoon in San Francisco when Virginia Rappe died mysteriously in his hotel room. He has been a vaudeville headliner, a movie director and a club owner. In fact he has been everything except what he should have been—which is a funny fat comic of the films. Today, grown many years older, one wonders if he would still be a good cinema slap-sticker. In his day, he always seemed to me one of the best.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MAIZIE ASHIE, married for 15 years to a newspaper man, warns her daughter and HOLLIS HART of the ways of reporters. ASHORETH, her only child, is marrying Hollis Hart, a triumphant marriage from a worldly point of view. The Harts are one of the oldest families in Boston and Hollis is a multi-millionaire. Ashoreth is a poor little stenographer, but beautiful as a Follies clothes horse. The story is meant for the press. Particularly in view of the fact that Hollis, flying from New York to his fiancée in Boston, has figured in an airplane accident. With him, at the time, was MONTY ENGLISH, an old sweetheart of Ashoreth's. Monty was also hurrying to her, because he had read that day in a New York paper a story, which implied that the "well known clubman—the rich and famous Mr. Hart" had become involved in a rather lurid romance with "a young lady of unusual beauty," said to have been a stenographer in his employ.

Monty, furiously angry, meant to get at the facts of the story. Following the crash, he learns the identity of his traveling companion and ascertains that he means to marry Ashoreth in the morning.

Hollis motors from Connecticut, where the accident took place, to the Ashie flat in Boston. Meantime, the Boston papers have heard, not only of the airplane smash, but the story that was printed in New York. They beseege the house like an army. And Maizie warns the lovers. "You'll never escape them. Don't I know? There's no outwitting the pack."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XL

Maizie was right. There was no fooling the pack. They camped all night on the door steps. Hollis left the apartment as day began to break. Then the reporters divided forces. Half of them followed him in taxis to his club. Others were waiting there. Begging interviews. Demanding statements. There were photographers with flashlights. And Miss Fannie Drown of the Trumpet, who never went to bed.

"Oh, Mr. Hart," begged Fannie, clutching him by the coat sleeve. "There's just one little thing I want to ask you. Tell me, Mr. Hart, if it is your belief that stenographers make better wives than society girls."

He shook off her detaining hand. "Good lord, Madam, you don't expect me to answer a thing like that!"

Fannie was running up the broad steps after him, whipping a dog-eared notebook from her pocket. A pencil from the depths of a big brown handbag.

"Let's say sweethearts, then," she compromised swiftly. "Do stenographers make better sweethearts than society girls, Mr. Hart? From your own personal experience I mean."

Parkins came trotting through the revolving door.

"There's a gentleman what says 'e's a personal friend, sir waiting in your bedchamber, sir. Eit's me own opinion, 'e's a news 'ound, if I may say so, sir."

With scant grace, Parkins bundled Fannie down the stoop.

"A gentleman's club! Eit's no place for ladies, Miss," he advised her.

A suave young man rose from the club chair in the sitting room of Hollis suite.

"Sorry to intrude this way," he apologized pleasantly. "But business is business, Mr. Hart. There's a rumor around town that Dan Corum is filing suit for breach of promise against you. Stories from Dan's office indicate that he'll be on the job first thing in the morning. He's made no statement himself, but the News wanted to give you an even break, so I came directly to you, Mr. Hart. Rather rotten, buting in on you this way, I know. But you understand how it is."

Hollis looked at him in astonishment.

"It's news to me," he declared.

"And you might tell Corum for me, that if he pulls any of his dirty stuff, I'll give him a punch in the nose. And I'll sue his whole dam' firm for defamation of character."

The suave young man smiled.

"Then there's nothing to it, Mr. Hart?"

"It's blackmail," Hollis told him shortly.

"That's Corum's specialty, isn't it? It's the sort of stuff they pull on Babe Ruth and Red Grange and any poor devil that happens in the limelight. And half of the suckers pay and the other half let them take it to court. Well, I'm not going to give Corum a cent, and I'm not going to let him take it to court either. I'm going to knock his head off, instead. Now you might take him that little message and see what sort of a come-back he has for that."

The reporter smiled disarmingly.

"That's the way to handle those guys," he approved. "And all the skirts that make the trouble, too. I'll tell him what you said, Mr. Hart. And take it from me, there won't be another squawk out of Dan..... By the way, congratulations are in order, aren't they?"

The suave young man extended his hand.

Hollis shook his head.

"You'd better save your felicitations for a while."

The other looked surprised. Grieved, in fact.

"You're not going to be married in the morning?" he exclaimed. "Why not?"

"The News," interrupted Hollis, "heard nothing of the kind."

"Then you're not to be married in the morning? Shall I quote that, Mr. Hart, as coming from you?"

Hollis shoulders sagged wearily. He looked desperately tired. And a little old.

"Good lord," he appealed. "Have you no respect for a man's private affairs? What if I should ask you if it was true that you beat your wife? Or meant to elope with the red haired waitress at Childs. Can't you see it wouldn't be any more presumptuous or absurd?"

The man chuckled.

"That is the price of greatness," he said.

"If I had a few million, Mr. Hart, I wouldn't care what you asked me. No—nor what you said about me, either. I'd thumb my nose at the cockeyed world. And I'd tell the tabloids to go to the devil!"

Hart smiled grimly. "I was about to say something of the sort," he declared.

The other took his hat.

"I was wondering when you'd suggest it," he declared good humoredly. Well, goodnight, Mr. Hart.

And you certainly know how to pick 'em. Miss Ashe can have my vote any old time. And that, I might say, is the consensus of opinion among the gentlemen of the press."

"And how in blazes," demanded Hollis irritably, "do you know what Miss Ashe looks like?"

The reporter beamed affably.

"We've some very good photographs of her," he explained. "The studio, where she sat last summer furnished several cuts, in exchange for what we call a 'credit line.' It's customary, you know. We print in So, and they count it good advertising. There are several profiles and a beautiful full face."

"As a matter of fact, one of the artists was painting on a veil and wedding gown, when I left the office. You'll see it in the first edition, Mr. Hart. Four-column front page lay-out."

Hollis choked angrily.

"It may be all in the day's work," he sputtered, "but it's a hell of a way to earn a living."

His caller bowed.

"If I had inherited a few millions, I should not," he murmured politely, "be engaged in such a nefarious occupation. Our motto, Mr. Hart, is 'Give the people what they want.' Presidents get elected on that platform. So I guess it's good enough for the News."

He withdrew. And, slipping out a back way, took a taxi to the office.

"Nothing," he mused, "to set the world afire, but a pretty good story at that." And, in his mind's eye, he saw a banner line in the first edition.

MILLIONAIRE HART THREATENS ATTORNEY CORUM.

Meantime, Fannie Drown had hurried to Maizie's flat. Now, Fannie was rated the most ingenious sob sister in Boston. She offered the taxi driver double fare, and told him to step on it.

"Till bet," she moaned, "they've beaten me to it—Belle Bailey and Vina Adams. I never should have played anything but the gud end!"

Fannie was right. Maizie, who couldn't bear to refuse anybody anything, had been persuaded to admit a chosen few, selected as spokesmen for the group. When Fannie found that out, she bribed the janitor, and waited in the hall while he delivered a note.

Maizie read it, and admitted Fannie. Belle and Vina, and Johnny Mahoney smiled when they saw her. They knew Fannie's favorite ruse.

the corner 'Photograph by So-and-For 10 years she had been getting away with it.

The note she had written read like this: "Dear Miss Ashe: Please let me see you for only a minute. I am a new reporter, and this is my first important assignment. It means my job to me. I will be fired, if you refuse. PLEASE."

It was Fannie who wanted a message for stenographers. And Belle who asked about the nightgowns. Vina was thirsting for the story of the romance. "From the very beginning, please, Miss Ashe."

Johnny looked foolish, and asked her if she liked children. It was then that Vina asked if she believed in companionate marriage. And should a woman have a career?

They persuaded Ashoreth to pose, with Maizie, for a flashlight. With Maizie sitting in the big divan, and Ashoreth on the arm, looking tenderly into each other's eyes. Then they wanted pictures of Ashoreth with her knees crossed. And someone asked if she had a picture of Hollis that she could be looking at, very soulfully, for a time exposure. It was getting light by that time.

At six o'clock Maizie made coffee, and cut an apple pie.

Vina scribbled on the corner of an envelope, "Just Folksy," and wondered how soon money would spoil the two of them. Ashoreth, they decided, was probably in love. And darn clever, if she wasn't.

At last it was over. Half-past seven.

"Lie down for a little while, honey," besought Maizie. "You'll want to be looking your best darling—and the circles you got under your eyes—oh, me-oh my!"

"But, Mums, how can I? There's too much to do."

Maizie was so near to tears that she must pretend to be very busy. Opening Ashoreth's bags. Shaking out frocks. Folding and unfolding. And packing again.

"I'm going to draw a nice warm bath for you, Baby Lamb, and you're to take a little nap. Mr. Hart told me you'd go straight to New York, and you can get whatever clothes you need there."

"Mother! You mustn't call him Mr. Hart! . . . Why, Mums, he's just about your son-in-law already!"

Ashoreth laughed hysterically.

"Did you know, darling, he wants to go to Paris? And he says you're to move right down to the Copley Plaza, Mother. And stay there—or any where in the world you want—until we come back again. Then we're going to take a house, Mums—and you're to live with us, forever and ever."

Maizie—because she was moved, most likely—snorted. Maizie never was a gracious person.

"Me at the Copley Plaza!" she scoffed. "Say, wouldn't that be swell?"

"Mums—Mumsie, dear . . . did you like him?" . . . Ashoreth stroked her mother's hand. "Don't you think he's sweet, Mother?"

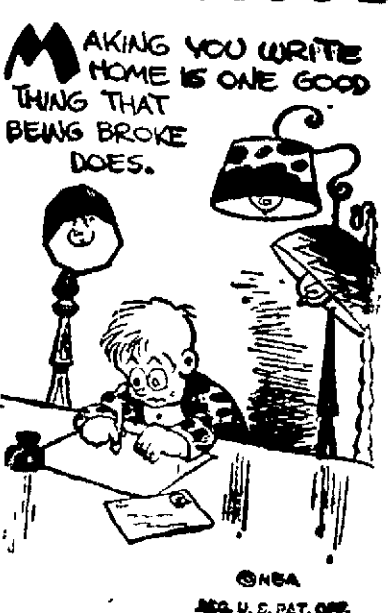

"Sweet? Humph . . . He'd better be sweet!"

Maizie scowled belligerently.

"What's that he kept calling you. . . 'Orchid'? What does he mean—'Orchid'?"

"Oh, he says I remind him of orchids, Mother. It's so darling of him. He says I'm exquisite, and chaste—and all the loveliest things you ever heard. Like an orchid, you see—sort of cool and remote . . .

LITTLE JOE

Oh, of course it's just too silly, dear . . . But isn't it adorable?"

Ashoreth smiled rapturously.

And Maizie, holding her daughter's face between her plump pink palms, prayed in her heart that life—and Hollis—should always be kind to Ashoreth. Because, thought Maizie, there aren't many such beautiful smiles in the world, and fate would be cruel, indeed, if the most beautiful smile of them all should perish.

The hours flew. And they laughed a little, and cried a little. And planned a little. And Ashoreth slept, while Maizie cried a little more. Then Hollis came, and spirited her baby away.

Maizie did not want to see the ceremony. She was afraid, she said she would cry. What she meant was that she thought her heart would break.

So Ashoreth and Hollis were married in Mr. Higginbottom's office, with only two stenographers to see.

"I, Ashoreth (she touched her pearls with her finger tips), take thee, Hollis (the richest man in Boston) . . . Oh, dear, it was dreadful . . . the thoughts that went through a girl's mind, when she was getting married. "For better, for worse (for better, thank God) "For richer, for poorer . . . (She smiled a lovely, misty smile). Hollis looked so wonderful!"

(TO BE CONTINUED)

You will want to start on their honeymoon, with Ashoreth and Hollis. They sail at noon on the Isle de France.

WHY DON'T YOU?

"The Sunshine Spends Its Winters Along the Rio Grande"
WHY DON'T YOU?"

In the magic land of the Valley of the Lower Rio Grande dreams of boundless wealth are coming true. Where cactus grew in 1911, stands today the "City of Palms," McAllen, a town of 14,000 people, with 20 miles of paved streets—on the "Longest Main Street in the world," extending from Brownsville on the Gulf to the shores of the Rio Grande and Old Mexico on the West. "50,000 in 1933"—in five years—is the slogan in McAllen. With two railroads, the Southern Pacific and the Missouri Pacific, with the distinction of never having had a hurricane or severe tropical storm, in a valley that has the richest and most productive soil in the world, with 12 months of growing season and sunshine, with irrigation water supplied when and where it is wanted, McAllen and the Lower Rio Grande command more than passing attention. South by 450 miles of Lower California, and 200 miles farther south than the citrus belt of Florida, it enjoys the distinction of having had a low temperature of 32 degrees F. only 159 times in 31 years, according to the records of the U. S. Weather Bureau, while California, by the same authority, has had 32 degrees F. 213 times in 16 years. Here the golf course greens are as luxuriant in December, January and February as at any other season and no winter rules are needed.

In 1904 there were only two banks in the entire Rio Grande Valley with deposits aggregating $216,000, while the scores of banks now carry deposits of over $22,000,000. In the same year the assessed valuation in Hidalgo County, in which McAllen is located, was less than $3,000,00, now it is $51,000,000. And the growth has only commenced. McAllen sees the future and has provided for it by making its corporate limits 5 miles wide by 16 miles long. The McAllen Development Co., composed of the leading bankers, business and professional men of McAllen, "where Nature never sleeps," have set aside a tract of land on the banks of a 15-mile long lake, and all of it within two miles of McAllen, which is offered to the investing public at prices within the reach of the average retiring business man or farmer. Through its trained horticulturists, these tracts are set out to citrus trees and cared for during the first three, or formative years, after which they begin bearing and should produce for life with ordinary care. There is a well-founded adage in the citrus belt which runs like this: "Take care of an orange or grapefruit orchard for three years and it will take care of YOU for the rest of your life." This company will replace any tree within three years that does not grow, and will take care of orchards for non-residents after three years at a nominal cost, through its large organization, should the purchaser so desire.

The next EXCURSION for McAllen leaves Chicago on Feb. 9th and takes ONE WEEK for the round trip. The rates are very low and include Pullman service, auto tours, sight-seeing trips and a chicken dinner in Old Mexico. Make up your mind now to go where discriminating investors are going and have your Winter Home produce Profit as well as Pleasure by the time you want to spend your winters there.

REASONS FOR DISOBEDIENCE
IN CHILDREN

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

When does a child feel justified in disobeying? Here are some of the reasons:

If he thinks you are indifferent and don't really care whether he obeys or not.

If he thinks the law he oversteps is of no importance.

If it is impossible for him to obey on account of some unusual circumstance.

If he sees his parents breaking the same law.

If he possesses more knowledge about a certain subject, than his parents and knows he possesses it.

But more than for any other reason a child will disobey and feel justified in doing so, if he gets the idea that certain rules made for him are unjust.

I know that many parents believe in unquestioning obedience. And that is as it should be. Obedience should be unquestioning. But if obedience is questioned, then the chances are that there is a good reason for questioning it and for disobedience, particularly if the offense is often repeated.

DISOBEDIENT—BUT WHY?

So if you have a boy or a girl who persists in overstepping the bounds of authority in any particular thing, I should begin to think it over. Is he wrong, or is the trouble with you and the law you have made?

Is the law reasonable? Are you sure the thing you are asking him to do is right, just and fair?

If you are convinced that you are not playing tyrant and not demanding something out of all bounds, then consider the other things.

Is it a foolish thing you demand? Does your child think it a law worth obeying? Does he respect it?

Maybe it is something you know absolutely nothing about, while he is well informed. You may say, "Don't go skating, John, the ice is thin and dangerous," while he himself saw two men making tests and a policeman setting up a sign that read: "Safe! Ice-skating Today."

Again, you may be doing the very thing you won't allow him to do. That is your right, of course, but it is food for thought. It may be the cause of his feeling privileged to do it too.

Few children deliberately disobey the same law repeatedly unless they feel justified. And you cannot do much about it until you find out the reason for this feeling.

SHORT JACKET

A red moire taffeta short coat, with a bow at the back of the neck and its flaring lower edge longer in the back, compliments a chiffon frock printed in red and black on a grey background. The frock's deep, uneven hem is faced with the red.

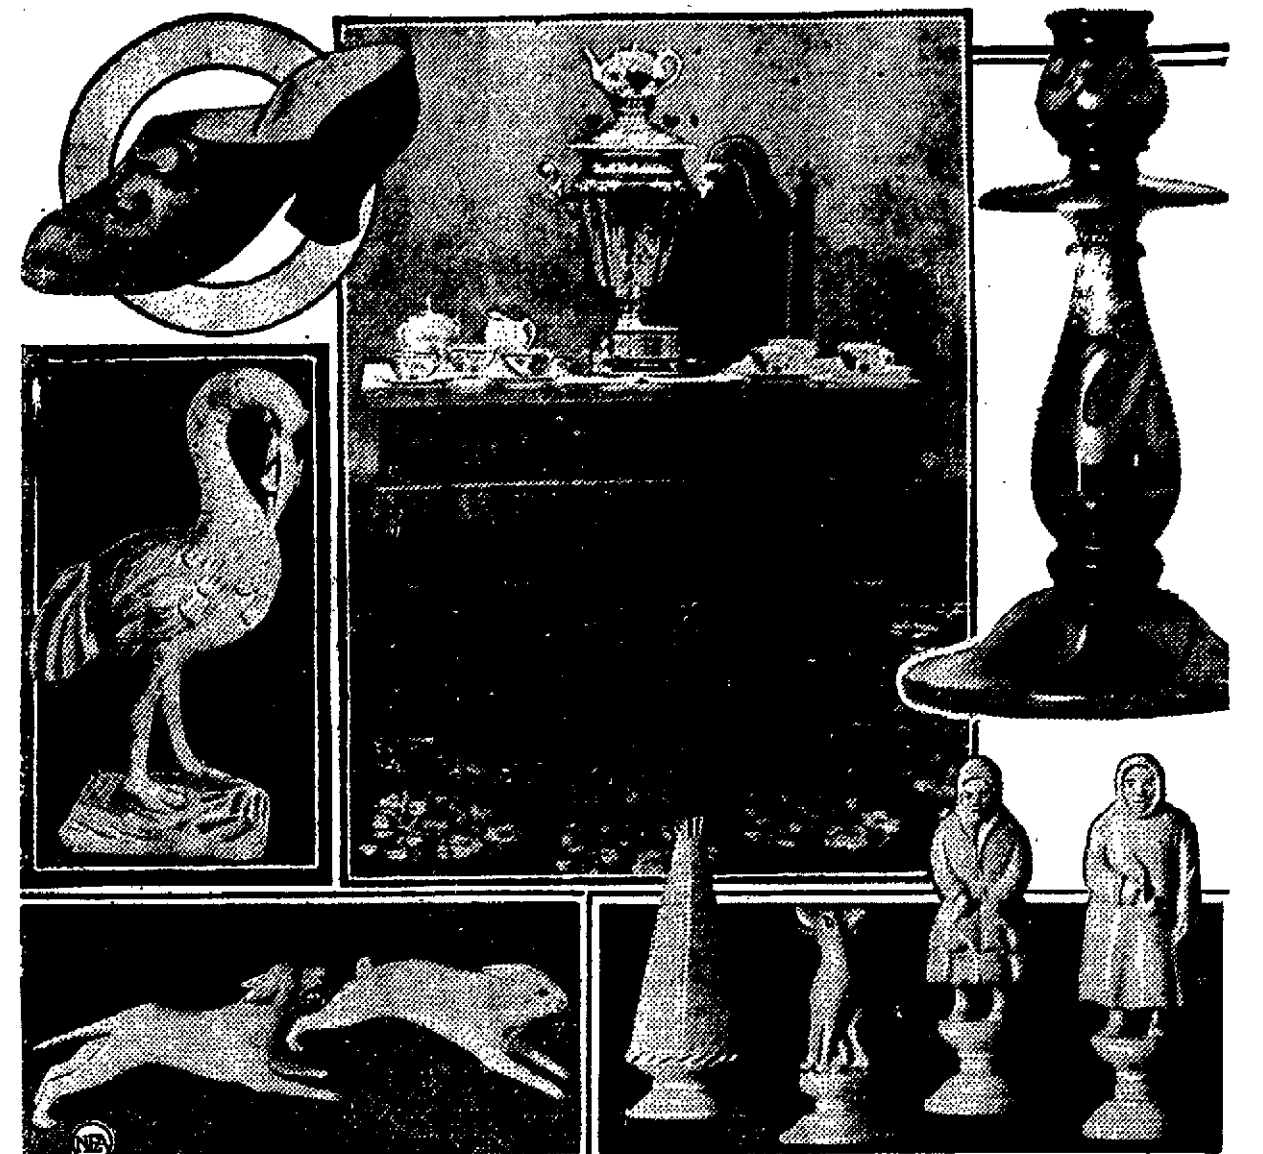

JADE-WHITE

A new evening gown of the latest stiffened chiffon is of jade-white, a formal evening shade. It has a shoulder cape and a two-tiered skirt that trails the floor in the back.

LINEN TOUCHES

A brown checked tweed frock has marched linen turn-back cuffs, a tiny starched rolled collar and a narrow leather belt.

Renaissance In Russian Art
Brought About By Peasants

All things Russian are decorative, original. Center is the Russian tea service, set on a hand-carved table on a bright Russian rug. Upper left: a leather sandal from the Caucasus is a soft green with lavender, gold and dark brown insets. Center: a one-cent toy is a little carved stork with a fish in his mouth and below are two of the new cheap wooden toys that have a live feeling in their inanimate bodies. Upper right: the bizarre lacquer work includes charming candlesticks. Lower: the new chessmen express the Bolshevik ideas of life by substituting peasants for the king and queen.

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

NEW YORK—If Milady wishes to be particularly smart and different when she serves tea this year, she should drop into the all-Russian Exposition of Arts and Handicrafts which will be open during February at the Grand Central Palace.

There she can see just exactly how they serve the tea that has made Russia famous. For there will be first of all, authentic Russian tea made in lovely samovars, served from handsome hand-carved Russian tables in modernistic Russian china. The linen on the tables will be Russian and Russians, in native costumes, can be seen in little Russian peasant houses imported and set up.

It is, in fact, a stunning, comprehensive all-Russian exhibit that includes 10,000 different items, totaling a million dollars in value.

THEIR ART IS PAYING

The collection speaks a renaissance of Bolshevik peasant art. For the native handicrafts of the peasant, such as making carvings, linens and lacquered boxes that used to occupy their long winter evenings have now been developed into a paying industry that puts bread into their mouths and objects of beauty into homes in all parts of the world. Some of the most interesting of the new pieces are "Palekh" lacquered and illuminated boxes. Back in Czarish days, the village of Palekha was famous for four centuries for its illuminated icons. When the church lost power with the fall of the Czar, and icons no longer had their tremendous sale, the villagers cast about for other objects to decorate with their peculiar art. These delicate, colorful and perfectly gorgeous little boxes result. They have fine patterns in lovely bright colors, all kinds of typical old and new Russian scenes.

The Russian linens shown indicate improved quality and a modernism that they have lacked before. Smocks, for instance, have some new ornamental bandings that follow the 1929 skyscraper lines instead of the conventional old-Russian ones. There are, too, well-cut and embroidered dress patterns, showing how Russia is catering to American demands.

Gaudy red lacquered candlesticks, ash trays, desk sets and big trays give one a hint of how certain spots in one's room might be livened by the addition of some of these. There are interesting hints to be had, too, in the carved ivories—the work of the northernmost Siberian tribes which reflect the life of their people, the types and their primitive dress.

Here, though, are indications of Bolshevik influence. Carved ivory chess sets, instead of having a king and a queen, have peasant figures in ivory, good types but hardly as regal looking as the erstwhile royalty.

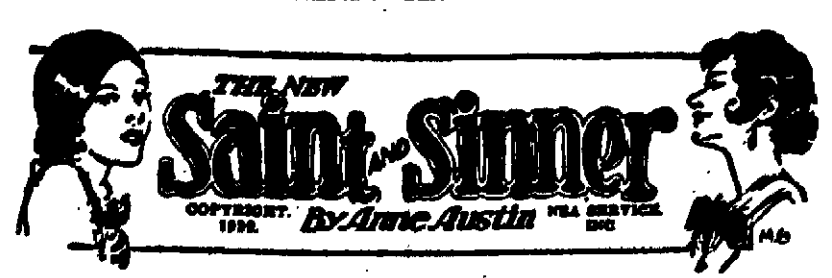

DEVELOP MODERN ANGLE

Russian linens, leather things and silver work all are fascinating. The linens come in the traditional Russian patterns and rich old colors and also in new pastel shades like soft apricot. There are bridge sets as well as lunch sets, this year, and other indications of a modern angle to this old-time handicraft. The same is true in leather, for the new shoes have mules and very comfortable little slippers of gaily patterned leathers.

Perhaps, to Americans, the most interesting things of all are the toy exhibits. There are on display innumerable little animals carved out of wood and sold for a cent or so, that children would adore. There are tricky little toys worked on strings, the Russian equivalent for the high-powered electric mechanism our American tots enjoy.

Aside from the artistic value to this country, of such a comprehensive exhibit, it is instructive in showing the renaissance in peasant art that Russia is feeling now.

American appreciation of Russian peasant handicraft is in no small way responsible for this exposition. For no country likes Russian theatre sets, pictures, Russian smocks, Russian linens, china, lacquered work, ivories and so on more than America. Therefore, in a way, this exhaustive exhibition has a genuine connection with America.

BREAKFAST—Stewed figs, cereal, cream, creamed fresh beef on toast, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Scalloped ham and celery, lettuce and whole wheat sandwiches, canned strawberries, coconut cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Salt codfish pie, buttered beets, cottage cheese, baked apple dumplings, milk, coffee.

SCALLOPED HAM AND CELERY

One cup finely chopped cooked ham, 1 cup diced parboiled celery, 1 1/2 cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and add salt. Put alternate layers of ham, celery and sauce into a well-buttered baking dish, making the last layer of sauce. Cover with cheese and sprinkle with paprika. Put into a moderately hot oven to heat thoroughly and melt the cheese. Serve from baking dish.

This is an excellent way to use up scraps of ham and the coarse outer stalks of celery.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Trouble Tots seemed very strong. They pulled the basket right along, and all the Tinies quite enjoyed the ride. It was a treat. "The ground's so rough," one Tiny said. "It's funny they can go ahead. I only wish that we were on a smooth and winding street."

"Oh, don't you worry," said a Tot. "If we get tired, as like as not we'll let you Tinies pull a while, and we will ride in ease." And then he added, "Truth to tell, if we keep running on pell mell, I'm sure that we will grow fatigued. I feel it in my knees."

"Oh, my," sighed Clowzy. "I just knew that that is what we'd have to do. It seems that all the fun we have is ruined in the end." Then Clowzy snapped, "You lazy boys! Why, I should think you would enjoy your turn at pulling all these Tots. A hand I'll gladly lend."

Then, in a half an hour or so one of the wee Tots shouted, "Whoa!" The Tots all stopped their pulling. "It is your turn now," cried one. And so the Tinies, with a shout, climbed up the basket and jumped out. "Why, sure we'll do the pulling now," said Clowzy. "Twill be fun."

On over the ground they gaily sailed, and not a single Tiny failed to do his share. Not far ahead they reached a long, long hill. "Oh, look!" cried Clowzy. "Let's all ride. Right down the hill we'll roll and slide. If we are very careful I don't think we'll take a spill."

They soon found out that he was wrong. They hadn't traveled very long until the basket hit a rock and bounced in air. Off flew the funny little wheels. The bunch fell out, head over heels. It happened all so suddenly. It gave them quite a scare.

(The Tinymites and Tots see a big bear in the next story.)

WIFE CASHES IN
ON EX-HUBBY'S
FAME AND NAME

BY ALLENE SUMNER

Lita Gray Chaplin is traveling around on a vaudeville circuit all because the Chaplin part of her name is printed in twice as big type as the first. And here's Marie Rasputin, daughter of the famous Monk, acting in a play based on her father's life. It's more usual to hear of a wife cashing in on her father's fame in this manner than to hear of a daughter doing it. But why blame either? Husbands and sons have been known to do the same. Count Salm, by the way, husband of Millicent Rogers, announces that he is to write a new story of his marriage to the heiress.

CAGERS LOSE TO NEENAH BY SCORE OF 24-7

Largest Crowd of Season Sees Second Game This Winter Between Schools

Kaukauna—Coach Elmer Ott's high school basketball five lost its second game with Neenah this season by a score of 24 to 7 at the school auditorium before the largest crowd to attend a game thus far this season. The game was exciting despite the one sided score. Kaukauna had numerous shots for baskets but missed many.

The first quarter opened fast and furious. Within a few minutes the Neenah men got range of the basket and dropped three for six points. Kaukauna then played a fine defensive game for the rest of the quarter which ended at a pace as fast as that in the beginning. Gaerdener and Thurmensen were the bright light of the Neenah team. The latter, the highly touted center, failed to score one basket in the whole game. He scored two points but they were on free throws.

The Kawmen showed plenty of fight during the entire fracas but were unable to cope with the fast passing and deadly scoring machine of Neenah. The second quarter found the Jorgensen-men having things at most all their own way. They scored numerously and the half ended with the local five on the short end of a 16 to 3 count. Sager had counted on a free throw and Captain K. Farwell netted a basket. He was the only Orange and Black man to score a basket. He repeated in the last quarter. Landreman showed remarkable improvement since his last game. R. M. also played a fine game for the Kawmen. G. Nicholson played a good defensive game but his small height prevented him from being dangerous on the offensive.

BIG THIRD QUARTER

Neenah did almost all the scoring in the third quarter. Landreman succeeded in making two out of three free throws which were the only points made by the local team in that period. Kaukauna speeded up in the last quarter which kept the game interesting until the final whistle.

St. Mary's parochial school took an 8 to 2 win from the Junior high school team in the first preliminary game. Neenah seconds walloped the Kaukauna seconds 43 to 4 in the second preliminary game. C. Barnes, Neenah forward, played a heavy game and scored most of their baskets.

Hothouse Climate Makes Tokay Wine Excellent

By GEORGE HALADJIAN

Tokay, Hungary—(AP)—Tokay wine, the renowned product of nature's gigantic hothouse vineyard, has maintained its world-wide fame unchallenged. Tokay is almost exclusively a product of Hungary.

Ideal weather conditions prevail in the Tokay district throughout the year. The sun shines every day and rains are few. Winter is as mild as in Florida, the reason being that the region is encircled by the Carpathian range in the north, east and west. The whole population is engaged in growing grapes.

There are certain kinds of grapes which predominate. The furmint, the yellow muscatel and the hiden-blattiridge in particular, ripen early and are sweet, delicate and aromatic. Picking begins usually toward the end of September and lasts about two months. By that time a great many of the grapes wither on the stem and it is from these that the best wine is produced. The price of Tokay wine depends on whether or not enough grapes have been withered to meet the demand.

When there are only a few withered grapes they are mingled with berries and the Szamorod Tokay, a cheaper, less sweet wine, is the result. When, as often happens, withered berries are plentiful they are mixed with unfarmed Tokay. In this way the pressing is done almost without delay. What gives the Tokay wines their rare qualities is the relation between the quantity of withered berries and unfarmed wines. To obtain a first class Tokay the makers use 130 quarts of unfarmed grape juice and 10 pounds of withered berries.

The barrel in which the withered grapes have been gathered has at its bottom an opening with a little pipe attached to it. The weight of the grapes push their own juice through the pipe into a receptacle. This thick, heavy, sweet juice, with its exceedingly high sugar percentage, turns into an excellent wine after a few years of fermentation.

WATER FOR COAL

London—A prediction has been offered by Dr. von Hohenau, Brazilian, that some day water will replace coal as fuel. He has succeeded, he says, in applying to water a very high vibration, releasing the hydrogen, extracting further oxygen from the hydrogen, and then using the hydrogen as a fuel gas.

STAGE And SCREEN

"THE JAZZ SINGER" AND THE PICTURE OF THE FUTURE

If you had wandered down Orchard Street, the heart of the Ghetto, some months ago, you would have seen a burlap covered truck careening at a rapid pace down the street, followed by those youngsters and grown-ups who had discovered a camera face protruding from a hole in the side. Orchard Street, with its close, squallid tenements — Orchard Street, whose babies lay in dirty carriages and inhaled air that reeked with the smell of fish, pickles, and cheap perfumes, was to be the background of a picture in the making.

When the little company went back to Hollywood, the director found he had a tremendous work ahead of him. He had returned carrying with him a little more than the external appearance of the street. He could see into the home of the man who stood back of a pushcart with a piece of lettuce on his head to keep the sun off. He could penetrate the home of the woman who sold jeweled pins for 5 cents a piece. He saw that there was tragedy and joy in Orchard Street, and interesting people to portray. He would have to take his audience into the home of a venerable old Jewish cantor and make him, with orthodox ideals, stand out, clear and comprehensible, like a fine etching.

The story of "The Jazz Singer" is the pathetic struggle of a Jewish cantor, played by Warner Oland, to immortalize the name of the Rabinowitzs in synagogue history. For five generations a Rabinowitz has sung "Kol Nidre" on the eve of the Day of Atonement, but Jakie, the cantor's son, has decided that he does not want to be a cantor. He was brought up in the midst of orthodoxy. His grandfather were cantors. According to all the laws of inheritance he should want to become a cantor, but instead he wants to sing jazz. Jakie runs away to go on the stage. Years after he comes back home. Cantor Rabinowitz would like to take him in his arms, but the struggle is still going on within him. His training from childhood in Jewish lore, and his innate orthodox views have submerged his love for Jakie. There can be no compromise between love and the ideals for which he lives.

This was the man that Alan Crosland, who undertook to direct the picture, and Warner Oland, who portrayed the character, had to understand. If they had been the least bit prejudiced, the character would have been unsympathetic. But Mr. Crosland and Mr. Oland knew the old cantor as an artist knows the hero of his book, or the subject of his picture. When you see Cantor Rabinowitz, you are both annoyed with his bigotry, and compassionate with him because you understand his conflict so well, and that is what makes him a great character.

The Warner Bros. have striven to make "The Jazz Singer" an outstanding tribute to the Vitaphone. For the first time music is reproduced as part of the dramatic plot of the picture. All of Al Jolson's songs as well as all of the incidental music in the production are synchronized with the picture. They have engaged the famous Cantor Josef Rosenblatt to sing for and appear in the picture. This is the first time that Cantor Rosenblatt, or any cantor, has consented to appear in a motion picture.

MILWAUKEE UTILITY MAN TO SPEAK HERE

Divide Second Safety School Meeting into Sectional Conferences

C. B. Boulet, chief personnel officer of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation at Milwaukee will talk on safety problems in the utilities at the second session of the Appleton Safety school at the Conway hotel Tuesday evening. The second meeting is to be divided into public utility, pulp and paper, metal and wood-working departments.

In the pulp and paper section, F. H. Rosebush, head of the industrial relations department will talk on "Safety Problems in the Paper Industry." Carl Bertram, conference leader will talk on Trouble Shooting in the metal section, and Herb Heilig, director of the vocational school will talk on the same subject before the woodworking section.

The advisory committee for the latter two sections is listing typical accidents in their industries. The group will discuss the cause and work out the remedies and plans of putting remedies into effect. They also will use in this work a standard trouble shooting procedure. The procedure has eight steps and the members of the section will be given opportunity to learn how to use it.

GUARD NONCOMS WILL MEET SATURDAY NIGHT

Non-commissioned officers of Co. D, 127th Infantry, will meet Saturday evening at Hotel Northern and make plans for company activities during the remainder of the winter. A dinner at 6:30 will precede the meeting. The non-coms will have as guests members of Corporal Ralph Everts' squad, the group which sold the most tickets for the company's benefit dance several weeks ago. Speakers on the evening's program will be Sergt. Mike Steinhauser of the 120th field artillery band and Sergt. Waldemar Olson, of the 1st battalion headquarters company, 127th infantry.

ORDER TO MORE COPIES OF SPECIFICATIONS

John E. Hantschel, county clerk, Friday arranged to have printed 40 more sets of specifications of the proposed addition to the Riverview sanatorium. Mr. Hantschel has a number of sets of plans and when the specifications are completed copies of both will be sent to contractors who desire to bid on the job. Bids must be in by Feb. 11, when they will be opened and the contract awarded if the prices are satisfactory. Already a large number of contractors have submitted estimates.

764 DOG LICENSES PAID TO TREASURER

Licenses for 764 dogs were paid to Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer, by Thursday evening, the last day of the period designated by state law for paying such licenses. It is estimated that licenses are still due on about 200 dogs. Police officers will conduct a house to house canvass within a few days to determine the owners who have failed to secure tags for their animals.

The Inaugural Pageant FROM WASHINGTON TO HOOVER

Washington—(AP)—From a boarding house in New Jersey avenue, Thomas Jefferson went to the capitol to take the oath of office as president, and to this boarding house he returned when the ceremony was over.

There he had spent the winter with other "plain people," enjoying their company and the beautiful view from the hill, loath to take up his residence in the "half finished executive mansion a mile away in the swamp."

Jefferson, "apostle of the masses" and founder of the democratic party of today, was the first president inaugurated in Washington. George Washington's first inauguration took place in New York. His second and that of John Adams in Philadelphia. The seat of government had been moved from Philadelphia to Washington in 1800 and November 27 of that year Jefferson arrived in Washington from his home at Monticello and took lodgings at the boarding house about 200 steps from the capitol.

Although there was booming of cannon, a large attendance of out-of-town people and some festivities, the inauguration apparently was of Jeffersonian simplicity. John Davies, an English traveler of the day, contributes this description:

"His dress was of plain cloth, and he rode on horseback to the capitol without a single guard or even servant in his train." dismounted without assistance and hitched the bridle of his horse to the palisades."

Other chroniclers say, however, that Davis evidently confused Jefferson's entry into, with his exit from, the presidency. Mrs. Upton in her "Our Early Presidents," says:

"Mr. Jefferson, like Washington, was fond of horses, handsome equipments and handsome dress, despite what has been said of his republican simplicity. He may have ridden horseback up to the capitol for his inauguration, as goes the myth, but he meant to have a fine coach and four for the occasion—only Jacky Epes, his son-in-law, did not get to Washington with them in season."

What is regarded as an authentic contemporary account of the inauguration was published in the National Intelligencer of March 6 1801. It said: "A discharge from the company of Washington artillery ushered in the day, and about 10 o'clock the Alexandria company of riflemen, with the company of artillery, paraded in front of the President's lodgings.

"At 12 o'clock, Thomas Jefferson, attended by a number of his fellow citizens, repaired to the capitol. His dress was, as usual, that of a plain citizen without any distinctive badge of office. He entered the capitol under a discharge of artillery. On his entry into the senate chamber, there were assembled the senate and the members of the house. The members rose and Mr. Burr left the chair of the senate which Mr. Jefferson took.

"After a few minute of silence, Mr. Jefferson rose and delivered his address before the largest concourse of citizens ever gathered here. After seating himself for a short period, he again rose and approached the clerk's table, where the oath of office was administered by the chief justice; after which he returned to his lodgings accompanied by the vice president, chief justice and heads of departments, where he was waited upon by a number of distinguished citizens.

"As soon as he withdrew, a discharge of artillery was made. The remainder of the day was devoted to festivity and at night there was a pretty general illumination."

Jefferson did not give up his lodgings at the boarding house for nearly three weeks after this. He made himself popular with the other boarders by refusing to take the head of the table, although urged to do so.

He was described by a visitor as "a tall man, with a very red, freckled face and grey neglected hair; and rather friendly, though he had somewhat of a cynical expression. He wore a blue coat, a thick grey underwaistcoat lapped over it, green velvet breeches with pearl buttons, yarn stockings and slippers down at the heels."

Y BUDGET INDORSED AT DIRECTORS MEET

Committee Completes Finance Program for Coming Year

The 1929 budget for the Y. M. C. A. was indorsed by the association board of directors at the regular monthly meeting at the association building Thursday afternoon. Reports of employed officers were heard and regular business matters were transacted.

The committee in charge of the new budget is composed of James A. Wood, chairman, W. E. Smith, T. E. Orblson, A. C. Remley, Dr. J. R. Denyes, J. G. Rosebush, A. F. Tuttle and E. E. Sager.

W. E. Smith is chairman of the house committee which will start inspecting the building within the next few weeks to determine the required amount of improvements. It is expected some new furniture will be purchased for the lobby and other improvements about the building will be added.

THE QUESTIONS
What should the bidding of this hand be at Auction and Contract?
What should the play be?

THE ANSWERS
In Auction, South bids one Spade and obtains the contract. His hand is so strong that there is no object in pre-empting.

In Contract, South bids six Spades and obtains the Contract. North appreciates that his King of Hearts may furnish the needed trick for a Grand Slam, or (as is actually the case) may not be of the least service. Its value is not sufficiently assured to justify his jumping. It is a great mistake to risk the big score assured by a successful bid for a Small Slam, by trying for a doubtful Grand Slam.

The play should be:
Trick 1. West, Queen of Hearts; North, the King; East, the Ace; South, Nine of Spades.
Tricks 2 and 3: South exhausts the adverse trumps.
Tricks 4 to 6: South leads three Diamonds.
Trick 7. South leads the Ace of Clubs.
Trick 8. South leads his fourth high Diamond and ruffs it with Dummy to lead for a Club finesse.

As the finesse succeeds, Declarer makes a Grand Slam.
At Auction the Grand Slam bonus of 100 would be scored; at Contract, 750 if vulnerable, 500 if not vulnerable, for a Small Slam, and 50 for one extra trick.

FISH, GAME SOCIETY MEMBERS WILL MEET

Persons interested in fish and game conservation whether or not they are members of Outagamie Fish and Game association are invited to attend the annual dinner and meeting at Hotel Northern Monday evening, according to association officers. Requests have been made that all persons intending to attend the meeting make reservations, but indications are that all persons who wish to attend will be taken care of. Members of the association also have been asked to bring their wives.

The speakers will be William Maule, Fond du Lac, chairman of the Wisconsin conservation commission; C. F. Culler, president of the American Fishery society; and W. B. Grange, another member of the Wisconsin conservation commission.

LEGION WILL HOLD MEETING THURSDAY

The next regular meeting of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion will be held Thursday evening, Feb. 7, according to James D. Baillet, post commander. The date of the regular meeting is the first Monday in the month but because of the legion program Monday evening, in which Pat Barnes of station WGN, will feature, a postponement was approved. The meeting will be held at the Elk club.

Orange Romps To 30 And 11 Win Over Sheboygan

CENTER EFFORTS IN FOURTH PERIOD AFTER POOR START

Berg Leads Scorers With Four Field Goals, Eight Free Throws

BY G. R. MCINTYRE
COACH JOSEPH SHIELDS, who introduced the "Zeppelin" play to football last fall in the Oshkosh-Appleton game, has again taken to the air from it evolved the "Zeppelin" play for basketball teams. But the latest innovation appeared to work to disadvantage Friday night when his aggregation played Sheboygan high school cagers, and it made the Orange team so dizzy in the first three quarters that it wasn't until the fourth period that they regained their equilibrium and by playing heads-up orthodox basketball rattled to a 30 to 11 victory.

For three quarters the high school team, led by Berg, who had uncanny ability with the gift shots.

Previous to that fourth quarter the high didn't rate much. They worked the ball down until the Sheboygan basket so often it was not unusual for their efforts at putting it through the hoop were negative and it was only the obvious lack of offense on the part of Sheboygan that kept the Orange from having a fight on its hands to keep a lead. The third quarter was worse than the first two for the Orange counted only four points while Sheboygan crashed through with seven. Something had to be done then to put the game on ice and Shieldsman finally started to function and rattled off 15 points in the last period to take the honors.

As the signal the crowd that was going out after a couple of half dozen points, Berg, Appleton forward, started the scoring shortly after the opening whistle when he tossed a free throw on Koeppler's foul. Gochbauer then tossed a nice basket and Berg added another throw which he followed with a field goal to give Appleton six points. Koeppler, Sheboygan center, dropped a long shot just before the period ended.

There was little excitement in the second quarter, the only thing of note being Berg's consistent scoring. He made two more free throws after the period opened on Zojowski's personal foul. A long period in which the Orange missed almost a "million" shots followed and Berg again broke the monotony with a field goal and followed with a field goal. Sheboygan had failed to count any more than the lone field goal and the score was 11 to 2 for the highs, Berg having made nine of the points and Gochbauer two.

Sheboygan drew blood to start the second half Zojowski scoring a field goal. Kunitz countered for Appleton and Greenstein topped one to give Sheboygan six points. Berg scored another field goal and Fahres a free throw for Sheboygan to be followed by two free tosses by Zojowski. The score then was Appleton 15, Sheboygan 9.

The Orange offense then got underway and a free throw by Berg, two field goals by Gochbauer, another by Schaefer, one by Breitrick, a third for Gochbauer, Berg's seventh, and a fourth followed by the team away out in front with 30 points. Greenstein dropped a field goal for Sheboygan's tenth and eleventh points as the game ended.

The Orange played without the services of Captain Benny Rathoff, center, who is suffering with an infected leg. Breitrick was sent to the pivot position by Coach Shields who first reported that he intended to use Schaefer at the position. It is unfortunate the Orange leader wasn't in the game for he probably would have performed in his best manner and gotten confidence in his abilities again, a mighty handy thing for the next three games on the schedule.

NOWACK, ILLINOIS, MAY COACH MARQUETTE

Milwaukee—Among the many applicants being given serious consideration for one of the assistant football coaching positions open at Marquette university here is Butch Nowack, 1928 captain and all-American tackle of the University of Illinois.

Nowack came to Milwaukee to consult with Marquette athletic authorities regarding an appointment and it is understood he made a favorable impression. No selection will be made for some time, however, according to Athletic Director Conrad Jennings.

Marquette will open a new school of physical education next fall.

FRIDAY'S RESULTS

Oshkosh 34, W. Green Bay 11.

Manitowoc 38, Marinette 22.

E. Green Bay 20, Oshkosh Teacher 17 (non-conference).

Oshkosh high school crept up into second place in valley league standings Friday evening when the Saw Dust city clank stepped out and walloped W. Green Bay 34 and 11.

The game marked a return to form on the part of the Oshkosh team which was playing its first game without "Curly" Fugh. Tedyen was high point man with five field goals and two free throws.

Manitowoc high crashed through with another victory by staging a brilliant second half rally. The final score was Manitowoc 38, Marinette 22. The score at the halfway mark was Marinette 18, Manitowoc 11. The Shipmunks scored 19 points in the fourth quarter.

East Green Bay played a non-conference game and beat Oshkosh teacher frosh 20 and 17.

BASEBALL VETERAN OF 90'S IS DEAD

Walter Wilmot, Stevens Point, Played With White Stockings

Stevens Point—(P)—Walter "Wal" Wilmot, who startled the baseball world in the gay nineties by drawing an "astounding" salary of $4,250 a season with the old Chicago White Stockings, is dead.

Wilmot, known as one of the best hitters and fielders the game ever knew, died Friday after a long illness. He was 90 years old.

While with Chicago, Wilmot was the highest paid player in the old National league, his salary even topping that of the late Adrian "Pop" Anson. Wilmot also played with the New York Giants and Washington and with Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Louisville in the old western league. He always played well.

Wilmot, retiring from baseball in 1902, Wilmot became interested in managing automobile shows. He is survived by a widow and son.

Two Changes In Leaders At State Bowling Meet

SHEBOYGAN. (P)—Two changes were made among the leaders in the five men event of the state bowling tournament here Friday night. The Fada Radio team of Milwaukee went into second place by collecting a grand total of 2876, with ten pins of the top score of 2886 held by Moose Recreation of Kenosha. The Waukesha Recreation team from Waukesha won their way into fourth place by getting 2782.

The new second place tipped the sticks over for a count of 1,022 in their initial assault, letting up for 42 in the second, and concluding with 542. E. Wiesbach rolled 611, and in doing this he started out with the remarkable tally of 278. He connected for 172 in the next and finished with 161.

In roundout on their 2782, the Waukesha Recreation rolled 948, 554 and 381, led by H. Smith with 766.

Two men and individual leaders remained unchanged Friday.

Dempsey Says He Won't Take Fight to Pacific Coast

Miami Beach, Fla.—(P)—Advance arrangements for the Sharkey-Strib fight entered their second phase Saturday actual preparation of the participants themselves for the battle at Miami Beach, Feb. 27.

With both W. L. "Young" Strib, pride of Georgia, and Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor on the ground ready to begin training.

Promote: Jack Dempsey turned definitely from denying rumors that the fight be moved to California, to giving his attention to completion of the arena, sale of tickets and other problems.

The principals in the Feb. 27 hostilities met last night at a Miami Beach boxing match, where they and Dempsey were guests. Strib and Jack Sharkey at each other, exchanged the usual pleasantries and Sharkey crawled through the ropes and refereed a fight.

Even Poorest People of Montevideo Seek Personal Betterment

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — Montevideo is the capital and only large city of Uruguay. There's something about it you'll like.

Your correspondent ducked the Hoover party for a day and went over on the night boat from Buenos Aires instead of on the cruiser. If the crowds on the docks and on the rails hadn't been shouting their goodbyes in Spanish the trip would have duplicated the night ride from New York to Albany, Boston or Fall River.

The Buenos Aires-Montevideo steamer is somewhat more palatial than those seen in American coastal waters. Artistic panelings, staterooms invariably equipped with running water, paintings and ornaments of old silver—those were some of the differences.

Romance presumably breeds on these ships. Anyway, there were honeymoon couples and plenty of sociability. Uruguayans and Argentinians enjoyed a rather good orchestra with their beer and wine until midnight. No one became intoxicated. Apparently no one ever does in these countries of Latin America.

Our correspondent saw a few drunken foreigners during the heavy tour, but never a native under the influence except a brackman on a Central American train—and he had taken some lessons in the United States.

IS WIDESPREAD

Montevideo itself turned out to be a sprawling old typically over a wide stretch. Throughout Latin America retarded civilization and street building, telephone lines and street improvements. It is rather a wonder that so much improvement work actually has been done. Montevideo, partly on inspiration of hundreds of her young men who have gone to the United States for technical training, has admirable street, telephone, lighting and sanitary systems.

The idea of progress and personal improvement has affected even the poorest people of Montevideo. It is customary for them to buy their plot of land, erect small, corrugated metal or similar material and perhaps take 15 or 20 years to pay for what they can finally call their own homes.

Paved streets have created the familiar situation where buses are in serious competition with street cars, which are now nearly empty. Motorbuses have become popular as highways have been built out from the city—there are at least five concrete roads none of which extends less than 30 miles. Ford and General Motors do most of the automobile business.

STRESSES HEALTH

The stress that Montevideo places on the health of her youth is seen in the 20 playgrounds which dot the city, with full equipment.

Your correspondent visited one of three schools where children of retarded physical development are sent each day. There were no cripples there; in fact, the kids looked quite normal. But here they play, eat, study and garden outdoors next to nature, with two-hour rests in deck chairs after lunch and only an hour's actual study each day for the purpose of retaining what they already have learned.

The class room is set in a beautiful grove, to which are taken each day their collapsible combination walks along shaded paths are part of the daily curriculum. Uruguay says the careers of these children from home to school and back again—of all her school children, for that matter. University tuition is also free and it is worth noting that the University of Montevideo has as high a standing as any in this hemisphere.

MINIATURE STORES

Montevideo stores are miniatures of those in Buenos Aires. One does not, in a department store, for instance, find any impressive amount of American goods. Their wares come from all over the world, for Montevideo is practically equidistant

How Glass Is Made

Glass is a compound of several substances, chief of which is silica. Silica is the largest and most important part of quartz, and therefore of sand. Forms of soda, lime, lead and potash are added to the sand, and the mixture is shoveled into a pot or tank in an intensely hot furnace. After several hours the mixture becomes thick like tar.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1922-26

Chemists in the large factories now measure exactly the ratio of sand to the other materials needed. This workman is mixing a batch.

The picturesque glassblower sticks a long tube into the pot and collects a lump on the end. He blows through the tube and the lump swells into a globe.

By swinging the tube and rolling the globe on a block while his assistant shapes the bottom, he can make various articles. Fish-bowls, wine-glasses and the like are made in this way now. The workman here is about to cut the rod away from a gold-fish bowl, after which the rough places will be ground smooth.

NO FOUL PLAY IN DEATH OF MARION MAN

Drunkenness and Exposure Blamed for Logan Strong's Death on Jan. 18

Waupaca—Logan Strong, 29, of Marion, died from drunkenness and exposure to cold, members of an inquest jury decided at about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. Strong's body was found early in the morning of Jan. 19, on a road about one and a half miles east of Marion.

Claus Maul of Marion, testified that he had been with Strong from 2 o'clock during the afternoon of Jan. 18, and that he left him after a quarrel at about 6 o'clock that afternoon. They had started on the road on which the body was found, Claus said, but he returned to Marion after his argument with Strong.

Maul testified that between them he and Strong had emptied three half pints and a one-pint bottle of bootleg whiskey during the afternoon. Beside this a one-pint bottle of whiskey, partially emptied, was found on the body. An analysis made at Madison revealed that the liquor contained no poison.

The inquest was made under the direction of Justice of the Peace Albert Gruenstern of Marion, as Waupaca has no official coroner. Mr. Gruenstern asked the following men as members of the inquest jury: Ed Bertram, Orville Brewer, W. E. Wulk, Leslie Noack, H. G. Meyer and Richard Betow, all of Marion.

LILAC BUSH FULL OF BUDS AT HOME OF MANAWA FAMILY

Manawa—Manawa seems to have all the signs of spring except warm weather and bare ground. If it isn't robins, it's something else. Mrs. Oscar Wohlrahe has a lilac bush on the south side of her house that is covered with buds and the topmost bud is almost ready to burst into a leaf. Unlike robins, this early budding of a lilac bush can be seen by anyone who makes an effort to walk around to the Wohlrahe residence.

ROAD GROUP IS CRITICIZED BY BUSINESS MEN

Clintonville Petitions Committee for Better Snow Removal Service

Clintonville—After the adjournment of the meeting of the Clintonville Hotel company stockholders Tuesday evening, at which 70 business men were present, a meeting was held to discuss the conditions of roads in this section of Waupaca-co following the recent snowfall which has completely blocked all roads leading to this city. Harry E. Brooks was elected as chairman of the meeting and City Clerk Julius Spearbraker was elected secretary.

Various business men criticized the county highway officials for the apparent lack of snow removal equipment in this section of Waupaca-co; apparent inefficient methods of handling what equipment is available; and the apparent indifference of the county highway commission to road condition at this end of the county five days after the storms.

Conditions in Shawano-co and in the immediate vicinity of the county seat at Waupaca, where all snow removal equipment is being stored, were called much more favorable than those near Clintonville. Roads in Shawano-co and in the vicinity of Waupaca were reported open while one lone truck was left at Marion by the highway commission to serve that community. Clintonville and New London, until such time as equipment from Waupaca could work its way through the heavy drifts in this section of the county, some 20 miles.

ASK BETTER SERVICE
Fred Fuchs, appointed by the chairman to get in touch with Waupaca officials relative to the question of available funds was advised by County Clerk Schoemaker the same evening that sufficient funds were available to handle the situation.

It was voted unanimously that Mayor A. C. Cather be instructed to send a protest to Waupaca-co highway officials at Waupaca, and those attending the road show at Madison for their lack of adequate snow removal in this vicinity.

A petition also was circulated and signed. A message to Marion requesting the use of the county truck in that vicinity was met with a promise that the truck would arrive in Clintonville Wednesday morning and 50 business men present at the meeting volunteered to accompany the truck with shovels to open the road to Embarras and south to New London. A committee consisting of F. A. Spearbraker, D. J. Rohrer and Fred Fuch was appointed to take charge of the crew.

One of the sentiments strongly expressed at the meeting was that the county commission arrange to have more equipment made available in the vicinity of Clintonville and New London.

ETHELYN PETERS IS VALEDICTORIAN OF MANAWA H. S. CLASS

8 Out of 25 Seniors Have Average of 90 Per Cent or More

Special to Post-Crescent
Manawa—Ethelyn Peters of Royalton, has been named valedictorian of the Manawa high school graduating class of 1929 with an average class standing of 85 per cent. Myrtle Prader of Little Wolf, will be salutatorian, having an average of 83 per cent. Miss Peters entered the local educational institution from the Royalton graded school and Miss Prader from Sturms Hill school.

The 1929 senior class ranks high in its scholastic record. Eight out of twenty-five who have passed the seventh semester have the enviable record of 90 per cent or over for the three and one-half years. Besides the two named above, Alfred Saxton of Ogdensburg, Margaret Thiel of Spring Brook, Margaret Casey of Royalton, Laura Rosenau of Sturms Hill, Julius Mundt of Dellwood and Verna Smerling of Ostrander are on the honor roll.

Other members of the senior class are: Avela Randt, Alice Rasmussen, Herman Roland, Eileen Irvine, Rose Miller, Erna Suchs, Ada Steinhilber, Chester Rebet, Edna Churnley, Laura Dreheim, William Feathers, Kenneth Fletcher, Gertrude Gloske, Janet Rice, Frances Groher, Leonard Steinhilber and Philip Peterson.

Five of the graduating class entered Manawa high school from the local grades. The Lutheran parochial school claims one, Royalton five, Ogdensburg three, Sturms Hill two, Vaughan two, Saxon two, Maple Grove, Dellwood, Fairfield in Helvetia, Spring Brook and Ostrander in Mukwa one each.

In the entire school there are 53 transfer students. These come from 10 different townships including Union, Bear Creek, Lebanon, Mukwa, Royalton, Waupaca, St. Lawrence, Helvetia, Wyoming and Dayton and from the villages of Ogdensburg and Royalton. The remainder of the student body claims either the town of Little Wolf or the village of Manawa as home.

INSTALL OFFICERS

Installation of officers in the local lodge of the Royal Neighbors of America occurred Thursday evening. Mrs. A. C. Charnley was the installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Tony Patrickus. Following are the new officers: orator, Mrs. Oscar Wohlrahe; vice orator, Mrs. J. C. Kinsman; past orator, Mrs. E. H. Vaughan; chancellor, Mrs. Benjamin Larson; recorder, Mrs. Fred Doney; receiver, Mrs. M. J. Noll; marshal, Mrs. Tony Patrickus; assistant marshal, Mrs. A. C. Charnley; inner sentinel, Evelyn Stevens; outer sentinel, Mrs. E. E. Witt; manager, Mrs. F. S. Lindow.

An attack of influenza caused the death of John Jensen, 77, near here, Thursday. He was buried Friday at the poor farm cemetery. He formerly lived at Sheridan.

Texas in the village of Manawa may be paid any time before March 1, 1929, without the additional 2 per cent penalty, following an extension of time granted by the village board this week.

NEW BUILDING TO BE ERECTED BY GIBSON CO.

Business Will Be Resumed Next Week in Temporary Quarters

Business at the Gibson Battery and Tire Co. 211-13 W. College-ave. destroyed by fire Friday morning, probably will be resumed next week under temporary quarters in the court in front of the ruined building. G. J. Schwab, manager, announced Saturday morning. Employees started to clean up the debris Saturday, and construction of the temporary quarters will be under way Monday.

In the meantime, plans are being formulated for construction of a new building as quickly as possible. Architects already have been engaged.

The cause of the fire, which resulted in a loss of approximately $33,000, partially covered by insurance, still remains a mystery. It is believed an explosion took place.

A. J. Johnson, 1222 S. Jefferson-st., an employee, who was burned about the hands and face when he attempted to fight the blaze, reported that the fire gained headway in an incredibly short time. Mr. Johnson had just let a customer out of the garage door, and had returned to the front office through the room in which the fire broke out to take an inventory of some stock.

DISCOVER FIRE

Before he started to do any calculating, he laid his records on a desk and opened the door to the rear room with the intention of washing his hands. Then it was that he discovered flames leaping up between the automobiles. This was only a minute or so after he had been through that room before. Grabbing a fire extinguisher, he approached the flames, which shot out and burned him.

A final check-up showed that there were 14 cars stored in the building instead of 13. All were destroyed by fire. Twelve of the machines were owned by the company.

A study of the insurance policies held by the company revealed that one of the policies expired Friday noon and another Saturday noon. However, arrangements already had been made several days ago for the renewal of both policies.

Although it has not yet been fully determined whether all the company's records here were destroyed, no worry is had over this possibility. The Gibson firm operates under a duplicate record system, subsidiary companies keeping one record themselves and forwarding the other to the main office at Oshkosh. So even if the records here were destroyed, a copy of them still will be available at the Oshkosh office.

Not only did firemen experience considerable difficulty in keeping the flames from spreading because of the proximity of other buildings, but they faced considerable danger in battling the blaze in the garage because of gasoline explosions.

A tank of oxygen and another of acetylene remained intact, but the gasoline tanks on most of the automobiles exploded.

Slight damage from water and smoke was reported at the State Lunch and the Wolf Shoe store, located directly to the west and east of the garage, respectively.

Mr. Johnson's burns, although exceedingly painful, are not considered dangerous. He probably will be able to leave the hospital in about a week.

ROAD COMMITTEE WILL HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

The Outagamie-co highway committee will hold a special meeting at the office of A. G. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner, at the courthouse Monday afternoon. The meeting was called by Chairman Frank Appleton. The regular meeting date of the committee is Monday, Feb. 11.

PERSONALS

Miss Pauline Ring of London, England, who has been visiting at the Harry Resman home left this week for Pittsburgh, Pa., where she will join her brother. They will fly from Pittsburgh to New York city, from where Miss Ring will sail for her home in the spring.

Mrs. Johanna Gosse is recovering from a serious illness at the home of Mrs. A. Gosse, 721 N. Oneida-st.

Mrs. Theodore Lembeck has returned to her home in this city from Wisconsin General hospital, where she has been since Dec. 15. Mrs. Lembeck will be at her home for three weeks.

Ernest Heing returned Friday evening from Milwaukee where he spent several days on business.

DISCUSS LIGHTS WITH COUNCIL COMMITTEE

Alderman Charles Thompson, chairman of the street lighting committee of the city council, met with the retail trades division of the chamber of commerce Friday morning to discuss a program for improving the lighting system in Appleton. Mr. Thompson will take the light problem before his committee at its next meeting and attempt to have the group go on record as favoring a resurvey of the needs of the avenue.

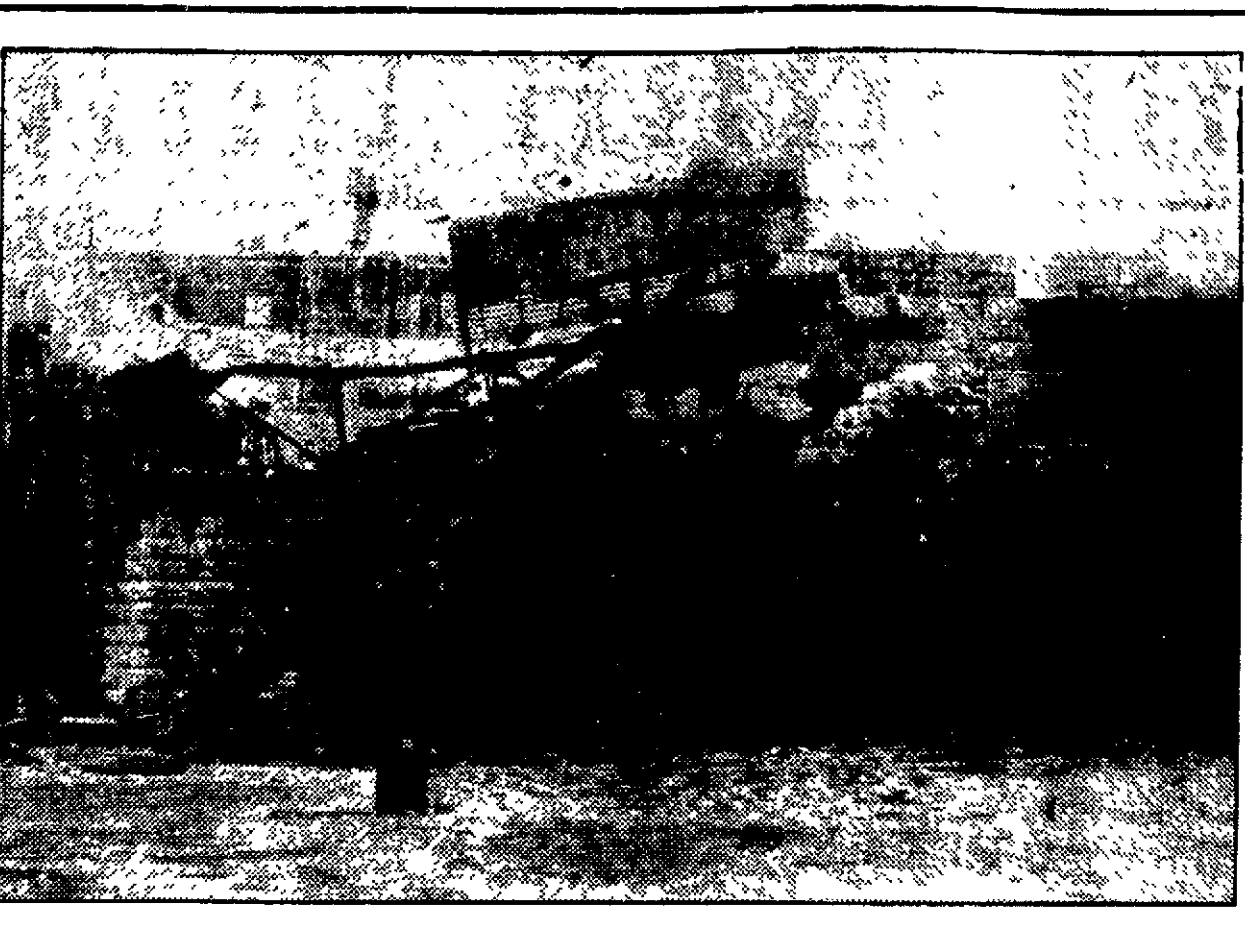

SHOW MOTION PICTURE AT LIONS CLUB MEET

Mr. R. Klench will show a motion picture on "The General Motors Motor" at the regular meeting of the Lions club at Oshkosh 8:30 at 10:15 Monday afternoon. Mr. Klench will explain how General Motors products are made on the proving grounds.

Committee Meets

The county board grounds and buildings committee will meet at the office of John E. Hartsch, county clerk, Tuesday afternoon. Bills will be allowed and routine business matters will be transacted.

$33,000 Damage In Garage Fire Here

These pictures, taken after the smoke had cleared away from the ruins of the Gibson Battery and Tire Co. salesroom and garage, show the extent of the damage. The loss is estimated at about $33,000. The upper picture shows what remains of the front wall, facing W. College-ave, and the lower picture shows the wreckage inside the building and the remnants of one of the 13 cars stored there.

Pat Barnes Appears On Legion Program Monday

A veteran of the world war who remembered all the funny things that happened during the days he wore a khaki uniform and slushed around in the mud of "sunny" France and has retained his enterprising folks, will entertain Appleton people Monday evening at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

The veteran is none other than Pat Barnes, now a comedian and radio artist broadcasting over radio station WGN and for that reason well-known to the thousands who daily tune in on the Chicago station.

Barnes will be master of ceremonies on a two hour program at Lawrence Memorial chapel beginning at 8:30 Monday evening, which also will feature the artist's accompanist.

HOPEFUL INJURED MAN WILL RECOVER

See Improvement in Condition of Henry Van Lathoven, Kimberly

The condition of Henry Van Lathoven, Kimberly man who was struck down by a truck Friday morning while walking along the road to Little Chute, is somewhat improved, and the attending physician is now holding out some hope for his recovery.

Mr. Van Lathoven, who was on his way to see his mother, Mrs. Theodore Van Lathoven, north of Kaukauna, who is ill, was unable to get out of the path of the truck as it swerved into a snowbank at the side of the road after trying to pass a large bus. His two companions, John Van Weiland, Kimberly and Anton DeWitt, Little Chute, succeeded in jumping aside before the truck reached them.

The injured man was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital where it was discovered that he had suffered a severe fracture of the skull.

DEFER TWO GAMES IN Y. M. C. A. CAGE LOOP

Two games scheduled for 7:30 and 9 o'clock Saturday evening in the Industrial-Y. M. C. A. basketball league have been postponed indefinitely, according to A. P. Jensen, physical director of the association. Other activities interfered with the matches.

Games for Saturday night were supposed to be played between the Kimberly club of Kimberly and the Kimberly Clark company of Neenah, and between the Company D and Y. M. C. A. teams. There will be a practice game between the Kimberly Clark company of Neenah and the Y team instead at 8 o'clock.

C. E. MEMBERS WILL DISCUSS FREEDOM

How Much Freedom Should Young People Want will be discussed by the Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church at 8:15 Sunday evening in the church parlors. The leader for the meeting has not been named.

Papers Are Filed

Nomination papers for Fred Sivert for candidate as supervisor from the Sixth ward have been filed with Carl Becht, city clerk. Mr. Sivert is the present Sixth ward representative on the county board.

NO MORE DEPUTY SHERIFFS TO BE NAMED, SAYS GIESE

No more deputy sheriffs will be named by Sheriff Fred W. Giese except in those rural districts where he has not yet named an aide, he announced Saturday morning.

Giese, who now has approximately 85 deputies, said he felt that the roll was large enough to take care of any emergency that might arise and he did not feel that any further appointments would be necessary.

Markets

BULLS CONTINUE TO PUSH STOCK GAINS

Moderate Weekend Selling During Brief Session but Trend Is Upward

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSTI
(Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York—(AP)—The stock market ran into moderate weekend selling Saturday, but operators for the advance were maintained at a strong pace, centering in the chemicals and the rails. Nearly a dozen of the latter reached new high prices for the third successive day. The close was irregular. Total sales approximated 3,200,000 shares.

Prices continued to climb at the opening. Eastman Kodak and New York Rock stepped up 2 1/2 and 2 points, respectively, and gained a point or more were recorded by National Biscuit, International Com-Munition, Engineering, Kenecott, and Atlantic Refining. A block of 5,000 shares of New York Central was taken at 20 1/2 within a fraction of Friday's peak, and more than 100,000 shares of the stock were sold at point above the close. Gardner Motors was again a soft spot, losing about 1 1/2 points.

Rails were again bought heavily helped by consolidation development. The Baltimore and Ohio announced that it would take steps to acquire the Reading and the Jersey Central. Union Pacific jumped more than 1 point and Southern, and Ohio, Reading and Southern Pacific around 2 each.

Union went to a new top of 20 1/2, on a statement by President Carlton that business is running 12 per cent ahead of last year. Bethlehem Steel, Calumet, Arizona, Kellogg Radio, Warner Brothers and Curtiss Aero moved up 1 to nearly 2 points.

Victor Talking Machine ran into profit-taking, losing 4 points, while Packard, Westinghouse Electric, North American and City lost 1 to 2 points.

Foreign exchanges opened steady with U. S. cables slightly firmer at $4.84 1/2-1/2.
